2 NAZI INVADERS DROP LIKE MEN FROM MARS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., MAY 21, 1941

GLIDERS WAR FOR CRETE

In the battle for Crete, Germany hurls into the fray such troop-carrying gliders as these, loaded with from 10 to 30 fully-equipped men.

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—Germany's "Men from Mars" attack on Crete casts the glider for the first time into a weapon of war, co-ordinated with the now familiar parachute troops in what may be a laboratory test of Hitler's plan for invasion of Britain.

Soviet Russia's air force, which led the way in parachute-troop experiments more than five years ago, toyed first with the glider-train idea.

The Nazis were in position to take the idea up seriously for Germany after the World War, under the Versailles treaty ban on military aircraft, turned to gliders as a sport, then developed motorless flying as a vast training school for fighting pilots of the future.

The glider planes can carry more troops for less fuel than transport planes alone, and have this additional advantage: The gliders, cut loose, can swoop to separate landings in cow pastures where the planes never could land.

Germany has thousands of them, and perhaps 100,000 pilots who can fly them.

Most of the gliders carry six to eight soldiers in addition to the pilot. Some carry up to 14. There have been reports of experiments with giant gliders which might carry as many as 30.

The use of parachutists, which took on a serious military aspect last spring in the first days of the Nazi onrush into the low countries, has been a German stand-by ever since.

The Germans adapted a quick-action chute, a padded uniform, and a specially-hardened corps of jumpers so they could be popped out from low-flying planes close to their objectives.

Such were the parachutists who landed behind the Dutch lines a year ago. They were used in Belgium and in northern France.

British and Greek reports said Nazi parachutists were used again in the first drive into Macedonia from Bulgaria.

The Italians and the British also tried parachutists.

'CHUTISTS WIN CRETE AIR BASES

LONDON, May 21 (AP)—The battle for the invaded Greek island of Crete is growing fiercer as German airborne shock troops keep pouring in, reliable sources declared today. A British broadcast indicated that air-borne German invaders had gained at least a temporary foothold on part of the island, including air fields.

The broadcast reiterated British reports that "the situation is in hand," however, and said:

"There is no lack of control of very large areas of the island, although parachute troops may be fighting in groups at various points."

Some German planes are known to have been shot down before they could land, the BBC added, "and there is ample reason to believe large numbers of the German troops were captured alive."

A BBC commentator, Maj. Alan Murray, predicted the Germans would use the many ships now in Greek and Dodecanese harbors, but declared:

"Such an attempt on the part of the Germans is just the sort of operations the (British) Navy would welcome."

British Cruiser Hit Off Crete

BERLIN, May 21 (AP)—A British naval unit west of Crete was attacked this morning by German warplanes and a "direct hit with the heaviest caliber bomb" was scored on a cruiser, DNB, official German news agency, reported tonight.

Nazi Army Chieftain Arrives in Paris

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army, arrived in Paris this morning by air, according to a British broadcast heard by CBS.

The British, quoting the German-occupied Paris station, said Von Brauchitsch was received by General Heinrich Von Stuepnagel, commander of the occupying forces in France.

He acknowledged the possibility that some sea transport might get through and added that "it looks rather as if one or two already have."

4500 TROOPS LANDED

On the basis of latest reports from the island, London sources said more than 4500 German troops are believed already to have been landed by parachute, glider and transport plane.

One authoritative informant said at least one air-borne German division totaling about 7000 men were "involved" in the operation, but added that by "involved" he did not mean the whole division already had landed.

(The figure apparently is based on the 1500 mentioned by Prime Minister Churchill yesterday and the additional 3000 said to have been put on the island overnight, either by parachute or transport-glider.)

It was considered impossible that a whole division could be moved in one day.

SEA FORCES MOVE

An attempt also has been made to land Nazi naval forces on the Mediterranean island stronghold, these sources said. It was expected further efforts to land paratroopers would be made.

NAZIS BAR ZAMZAM SURVIVORS FROM REVEALING WAR SECRETS

BERLIN, May 21 (AP)—German military authorities will make sure that American ambulance drivers cannot divulge any military information to the United States or Britain, authorized sources declared today.

This came in response to the question whether the Americans captured in the sinking of the Egyptian liner Zamzam would be released soon.

Donald Heath, first secretary of the United States Embassy, who called at the foreign office today, was understood to have received official assurances of the Americans' safety and to have been told arrangements would be made for them to be visited by an American consular official.

(In Washington, the State Department was advised today that German naval authorities would permit American survivors from the sunken freighter Zamzam to leave France. The report came through Vichy, from Henry S. Wateman, American consul at Bordeaux. He reported that "German naval authorities have no objection American survivors leaving via Spain, Portugal.")

Speedy release of the 140 Americans taken off the Zamzam before she was sunk in the South Atlantic by a Nazi warship previously had been forecast by an authorized German spokesman.

This source said it was expected the Americans—declared safe at the German-occupied port of St. Jean de Luz—would be permitted to leave shortly for neutral countries.

The Americans taken from the ship number 62 men, 53 women and 23 children under 11 years of age.

"It is publicly known fact the American patrolling system has for its chief purpose that of reporting on anything that might be of service to the British," authorized sources later observed.

"It must be assumed that the ambulance drivers pledged to Gen. de Gaulle have a similar assignment."

The statement followed an official announcement that all 322 persons aboard the vessel had been saved.

The Berlin cable did not indicate what disposition the Germans intended to make of these non-American citizens.

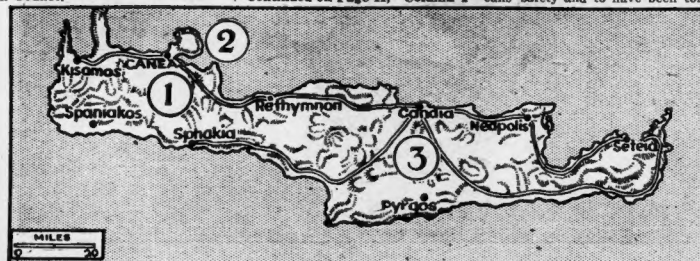

(The Zamzam, which sailed March 20 from New York, was en route to Capetown, South Africa, and Alexandria when sunk. She carried a number of ambulances intended for the British Middle East forces and a number of American volunteer ambulance drivers.)

Elaborating previous meager reports of the sinking, the German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatische-Politische Korrespondenz, said the Zamzam was halted for investigation on the high seas by a Nazi warship.

This investigation, the Germans declared, disclosed the vessel was carrying large quantities of war material consigned to the "Free French" forces of Gen. de Gaulle.

ATTACK ON CRETE—Co-ordinated with parachutists, troop-laden gliders invaded the island of Crete today for the second time, as the German high command staged a possible rehearsal for the invasion of England. In Crete, the troops landed near (1) Canea and (3) Candia, the intention obviously being to pinch the defenders of the island between two units. Meanwhile, dive bombers blasted Suda Bay (2).

Blonde's Flaming Love Letters Read at Emery Murder Trial

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

Flaming love letters, alive with the passion the state charges as motive for the "hopeless love" slaying of her married paramour, were read today at the trial of pretty Ruth Steadman.

They told, in burning words, that she had left her husband and baby, Judy, to be with Robert Emery of Natick; that "I can't live without you"; that "nothing else matters."

"I won't live longer than you want me," a line in one letter read.

And there were many others pointed to as significant:

"I want to ride some place with you and never come back."

"Lord, darling, I love you so much that nothing else matters!"

"I dreamed of you last night and we were right together."

"For me it is nothing more than lies."

As the letters were read by Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward M. Sullivan in the still courtroom, the pretty widow of the slain man, Mrs. Ruth Steadman, sat on the witness stand, head bowed and occasionally dabbing at her eyes with a small white handkerchief.

In the prisoner's cage, the blonde, 27-year-old former Harvard secretary, accused of the "hopeless love" slaying, evidenced no emotion when the letters were read.

5 B. & M. Men Hurt As Pick Derails Car

MILFORD, N. H., May 21 (AP)—Five Boston & Maine R. R. employees were injured today when a pickaxe fell beneath the wheels of a gasoline car causing it to leave the rails and topple down an embankment on the Wilton Division. The men suffered cuts and bruises. They were Leo Lagasse, Lowell, Mass.; Charles E. Cheever, Lyndeboro; Joseph Gordon, Greenfield, Mass., and William Welch and Joseph Hurlon, both of Manchester.

BLONDE WEEPS WILDLY

But later Mrs. Steadman broke down for the first time since her arrest on Jan. 21, and in open court, she wept bitterly and was shaken by paroxysms. The courtroom was cleared and a recess called.

This sudden break in the defendant's composure came when a policeman testified that at Boston Psychopathic Hospital, the defendant had declared she still loved the dead Emery "and I don't care what happens to me, even if I get the electric chair."

For the second day the eyes of the two blondes, Mrs. Steadman and Mrs. Emery, both extraordinarily attractive, one charged with destroying the husband of the other, failed to meet in court.

For the second day, the eyes of these two blonde women, both extraordinarily attractive, but the one charged with destroying the husband of the other, failed to meet.

TOLD WIFE OF LOVE

For the third successive day Mrs. Steadman had a change of costume. Today she wore a peach-colored dress and blue straw hat, sailor-type. She did not carry the blue coat she had had on the first two days of trial in Judge Vincent Brogna's session of superior court. And for the third successive day, women in the crush of spectators at the trial beat men to seats to hear unfolding of the evidence.

Before the letters were read today, Mrs. Emery testified that her husband, three months before he died, admitted to her his "relationship" with Mrs. Steadman.

Under cross-examination the widow revealed that although Emery was in financial difficulties during the latter part of last year and had some checks "that were of no value," he suddenly began taking out insurance.

HEAVY INSURANCE

There was a $10,000 life policy, she said, effective Jan. 2, only 19 days before his death. And only a week before the death (although she did not know of them, she said until after he died) he applied for another $500 policy to a Vermont company and for a $20,000 policy to the John Hancock Insurance Co., Boston.

In a colorless voice, the young widow and mother of Emery's two children, told of the last time she saw and talked with her husband, a former Natick real estate man. That was on Jan. 13 of this year.

LaGuardia to Lead 6 Mayors to London

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, director of the newly created office of civilian defense, was reported today preparing for an inspection trip to London. City Hall reports said the mayor might head a delegation of six members of the United States conference of mayors, of which he is president.

Trial Shows Contrast in Two Loves

By ALICE BISSELL

Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

Apparently choosing from an extensive wardrobe, Mrs. Ruth Steadman appeared in court today in the third different costume she has worn since her trial began on Monday.

She wore a pale pink summer shirtwaist dress with a gold charm on the left pocket for her only jewelry. Her hat was a large navy straw slanted over her right eye, and she wore matching navy shoes.

Paler than she had been the previous two days, the deep circles under her eyes revealed the strain she has undergone.

Mrs. Robert Emery was in the courtroom early, but she did not look up as Ruth Steadman was led to the dock, nor did she glance at her once during the morning session when Mrs. Emery was on the stand.

Both women sat with their eyes lowered toward the floor. The contrast was striking.

Mrs. Emery, slender, soft-spoken, wore a plain navy blue coat with white trimmings and a small matching turban showing her light brown curls and small earrings. For the most part, she had a look of grief and timidity as she testified and had to be told repeatedly to raise her voice.

Mrs. Steadman sat erect in the dock, making a conscious effort to keep her steady blue eyes on the floor, but taking quick glances

HUB DEB TO BE BRIDE OF BERMUDA BANKER

A romance born of a mutual love of sailing was climaxed today when Miss Lillian Pendleton Fernald, post-debutante daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Fred C. Fernald, of 68 Beacon st., filed intentions to wed Colin Robert Popham Smith, 22-year-old Bermuda banker.

LILLIAN FERNALD
Society Romance

Blonde and pretty Miss Fernald said today her husband-to-be will fly here for the wedding from Bermuda in about two weeks. She said she met him while on a visit to the island about two years ago and the two were drawn together by mutual love of sailing.

He is the son of Fred C. and Mrs. Lillian May (Popham) Smith, a long-line Bermudan family and descendants of Admiral Popham, of British naval fame, and the Duke of Wellington.

Miss Fernald made her debut in 1938. Her mother is the former Lillian F. Hunting of Boston.

'NOT GUILTY' PRESTON PLEA IN SLAYING

In a clear, confident voice, James F. Preston, 40, of East Boston and Wilmington, today pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Suffolk Superior Court, charged with the murder Nov. 23, 1937, in Revere, of Louis Gaeta, Revere gambler.

Judge Hanly ordered Preston held without bail and returned to Charles st. jail to await trial.

In contrast to his informal attire—a blue gray camel's hair sweater and no coat—when he made his surprise surrender to Dist. Atty. Foley Monday, the former Wilmington sportsman today was a sartorial model of the conservative business man.

He wore a powder blue suit with pla stripes and harmonizing tie. He also wore the dark glasses in which he appeared Monday.

The prosecution now has five witnesses in protective or police custody, following a roundup within 24 hours after Preston's surrender. One of them is Miss Betty Stutz Dalton of Roxbury, who has been placed in the custody of two State policemen.

The others are Michael Kingsley of Chelsea, and Samuel Zarinsky of Revere, ordered committed to Norfolk County jail at Dedham; Charles Calders, formerly of Revere, ordered committed to Plymouth jail, and Michael A. Venezia of North Revere, sent to Middlesex County jail in Cambridge.

Hub Joins Huge Fund Drive Plan

The proposed plan to hold one annual combined campaign in the event of war has been endorsed by 33 community funds throughout the United States, including the Greater Boston fund, it was announced today by Robert Cutler, Boston corporation counsel and president of the National Assn. of Community Chests and Councils.

"Such a plan is rational and in the interests of the American people," Cutler said, "because it provides a united pooling of community leadership, resources and facilities, and because it is efficient, economical and non-competitive."

Among the communities endorsing the plan, besides 46 cities and towns of Greater Boston, are the Massachusetts cities of Springfield, Framingham and Lowell. Also the larger cities of Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Denver, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Providence and San Francisco.

Battle to Break $28,000 Will Continues in Salem

SALEM, May 21—Battling relatives who seek to break the will of his aunt, Mrs. Lucy McCarthy, in which he was bequeathed $28,000, James E. Dolan, headmaster of the Beethoven School of West Roxbury, denied today he promised her she would be buried with her husband if she remembered him in her will.

Counsel for John Ford, one of the contestants, asked Dolan today:

"Did you ever promise your Aunt Lucy that if she left you

Mrs. F. D. Visits Injured Son in Hospital Here

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spent nearly two hours today at the bedside of her son, Franklin, Jr., in Phillips House of Massachusetts General Hospital, where he is confined with injuries suffered when his automobile overturned Sunday.

With young Franklin at the time were his wife, the former Ethel duPont, and his younger brother, John.

The First Lady, accompanied by her secretary, Miss Thompson, arrived in Boston by train from Bangor, Me., where she spoke last night.

She had little time for reporters, pausing only to say in answer to a question that she thought a statement from her son, Marine Capt. James Roosevelt, that the United States "is already in the war," had been misinterpreted.

She said the condition of young Franklin, a naval ensign, was much improved and that he would be transferred to the Chelsea Naval Hospital this afternoon.

Franklin's wife remained with him after Mrs. Roosevelt was whisked away by John in his automobile to catch a plane for Washington, where she had another speaking engagement this afternoon.

47 Flee to Safety In Fall River Fire money in her will you would see to it that she and her husband were buried in the Randolph lot?"

"No, sir," Dolan replied.

Dolan testified yesterday his action at the burial of his aunt's husband was prompted by the wishes of his mother.

Today he testified that two weeks after the death of his uncle, Edmund Walsh, he and his brother, Arthur Dolan, held a conversation, in which the latter told him:

"John Ford said that when Lucy goes if you get a cent more than he does, he will fight you in court."

Dolan then testified his brother inquired for his opinion as to how much Lucy was worth, quoting Ford as saying it was between $60,000 and $70,000.

Dolan said he replied:

"I don't know, but it's not that much."

KILLER GETS CHAIR, SPITS AT N. Y. JUDGE

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—George Joseph Cvek spat at the judge today as he was formally sentenced to die in the electric chair for the strangulation slaying of Mrs. Catherine Pappas in her Bronx apartment Feb. 4.

The sentence, imposed by Judge James M. Barrett, was mandatory on the 24-year-old Harrisburg, Pa., hitch-hiker's conviction for first degree murder. The youth also has been accused of robbing or attacking more than a dozen other women in Eastern cities.

BITTER TIRADE

The sneering defendant, escorted by six deputies, spat first at Acting Detective Lieut. Edward Byrnes, who obtained two confessions which Cvek later recanted.

Before the court set the week of July 7 for his electrocution at Sing Sing, Cvek burst forth in a bitter tirade:

"All I have to say is this: This is a wonderful country here that everyone is talking about where a man has to admit a crime, to save himself, which he didn't commit."

After calling Dist. Atty. Samuel J. Foley "a damn liar" and being upbraided by Judge Barrett for cursing, the prisoner told the court he was ready for sentencing, then suddenly shouted:

TREMLED AT SENTENCE

"But leave out 'may God have mercy on your soul,' because if there was a God He wouldn't let things go like they have been."

"I intended to leave it out anyway," replied Judge Barrett.

He then sentenced Cvek, omitting the phrase, "May God have mercy on your soul."

Cvek trembled as he heard the death sentence. His hands were strapped into a protection belt by deputies as they led him away.

ONSET CHOSEN FOR YD WEEK-END CAMP SITE

Onset has been chosen as site for a recreational camp where 500 Camp Edwards soldiers at a time may spend their week ends free this summer, Lieut.-Col. Charles Harvey Moore of Brookline, YD personnel officer, announced today.

The Morale Division of the War Department, he said, will purchase land and construct bathing beach facilities on plans perfected yesterday following a final survey of sites by Maj.-Gen. James A. Ulio, chief morale officer of the War Department.

Negotiations for the land are now in progress, Col. Moore said, and construction will be started as soon as title is passed to the War Department.

WOMEN GUESTS

A feature of the beach, to which soldiers will be furnished transportation, Col. Moore said, will be that women guests will be permitted and separate bathing facilities provided for them.

Other sites under consideration are at Popponessett on Vineyard Sound and at Hog Island to take care of others in the 26,000 enrollment and, according to Gen. Ulio, a similar camp is being planned for First Division men at Portsmouth, N. H.

At Ft. Devens, Army officers were completing plans for celebration of Cantigny Day Saturday by a review and parade of 15,000 men.

The peacetime soldiers will join Bay State World War veterans in observance of the day, which marks the anniversary of the first battle fought by division troops in France in 1917.

After the parade, the division will demonstrate military equipment for the public, which is invited.

Five mess halls will be prepared to provide hot suppers for the veterans and their wives. From 4 to 5 p. m., the 26th Infantry band will present a concert.

U. S. Workers Branded Reds

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—A woman investigator told a House subcommittee on un-American activities today 150 government employees went from Washington last month as delegates to a New York meeting sponsored by the American Peace Mobilization, described by committee attaches as a Communist front organization.

Miss Mary Spargo, the investigator who said she was formerly a reporter on a Washington newspaper, testified that "in a sort of fashion" she had joined the peace group to investigate it from within.

Earlier, another woman investigator, Miss Helen Huffman of New York city, testified the Communist party had issued orders to all its units to organize peace groups in this country, but to keep the party's connection in the background and that the Italian bureau of the party was instructed to pay special attention to Italians after Italy entered the war.

37 Million Available For Civil Defense

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—A plan for the voluntary registration of the millions of men above the present military age was reported under consideration today as Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia came here to direct the vast civilian defense program.

Counting in more than 2,000,000 World War veterans, authorities said there were approximately 10,000,000 men in the age group 36 through 45. (The age limits for military service registrants are 21 through 35.)

Furthermore, they pointed out, there were 27,000,000 women between ages of 21 and 46 from whom additional millions of volunteers could be drawn, if the registration were extended to cover them.

A final decision on adoption of the voluntary registration plan, it was said, will rest with La Guardia, to whom the President has delegated full authority for supervising the organization of civilian defenses.

Such defenses include Home Guards, already formed in some states; air-raid warning and air-raid defense services, and the numerous services connected with recreational and social projects for men in the Army.

NAMES ASKED

In announcing his selection of New York's mayor for the new post, Mr. Roosevelt indicated that civil defense services might utilize men of military age who are in deferred classifications.

Of the 18,500,000 selective service registrants, about 6,000,000 have been classified to date and only 600,000 of these men will be in training by the end of June. Thus a reservoir of at least 5,000,000 would be available here, and the number would be more than doubled when the remaining 10,000,000 registrants are classified.

However, some authorities are known to view this huge pool of registrants as the nation's principal manpower supply not only for military service, if deferments should be restricted, but also for defense industries and agriculture.

They argued that it would be better to draw the bulk of civilian defense personnel from volunteers above military age.

If LaGuardia does decide to call for civil defense volunteers, many officials believe that, without urging, literally millions of both men and women would flock to sign up.

At the office of production management, for example, it was reported that every day's mail brings in hundreds of letters asking the same general question: "What can I do to help national defense?"

CIVILIAN MORALE

Many informed persons were of the opinion that one of the chief factors which led President Roosevelt to create the office of civilian defense was this insatiable on the part of so many persons to be given something to do.

In this connection it was noted that LaGuardia was assigned among his other duties the job of looking after civilian morale, and it was expected that while his long-range objective would be to prepare against such possible dangers as airplane attacks, his immediate goal would be the stimulation of morale by making the defense drive a matter of personal concern to the millions who heretofore have had nothing personally to do with it.

President Roosevelt separated the Office of Civilian Defense into two principal divisions: One a board of civilian protection, under LaGuardia, with representation for the War, Navy and Justice Departments and the second a "volunteer participation committee" composed of 20 members, at a maximum, representing various regions and interests.

Once again, the giant distribution facilities of Sears, Roebuck and Company have been enlisted in a great new Music Appreciation Offer designed to gladden the hearts of all true lovers of music.

Having cooperated in the distribution of Symphonic and Operatic recordings into thousands of homes in the Boston area, Sears, Roebuck and Company is now engaged in another, even more thrilling Music Offer.

This time it is a COMPLETE AND PERMANENT MUSIC LIBRARY FOR THE HOME! Included in this offer are the world's most treasured overtures, waltzes, rhapsodies, serenades, songs and compositions of every description. Great musical masterpieces by such immortal composers as Beethoven! Liszt! Grieg! Dvorak! Tchaikowsky! Strauss! Handel! Gershwin! and others.

In fact, this library will bring you a total of 143 selections by 82 composers—at the unbelievably low price of less than 11c a selection! Think of it! Even if you were never to add another record, you would have here as complete and balanced an assortment of music as you could ever desire—music for every occasion!—music for every mood!

THIS LIBRARY CAN BE YOURS EASILY! QUICKLY!

Each week—over a period of 12 weeks—a group of 4 big, double-faced, 12-inch records will be available at Sears, Roebuck and Company—thus enabling you to collect your records week by week, at incredibly small cost, until your library is entirely complete!

Right now, your first group of 4 big records is ready for you! These 4 large-size 12-inch, double-faced records contain the following magnificent selections: Strauss' BLUE DANUBE; Victor Herbert's KISS ME AGAIN; Schumann's TRAUMEREI; Rossini's BARBER OF SEVILLE (Overture); Beethoven's MOONLIGHT SONATA; Schubert's AVE MARIA; ADESTE FIDELES; Gershwin's RHAPSODY IN BLUE; Intermezzo from CAVALIERIA RUSTICANA.

For this first group of records you pay only 39c each, a total for $1.56 of the entire group of four big 12-inch records. And each week you can obtain another group, until you have secured the first 10 groups. After you have collected those 10 groups (40 records), you will be presented with the final 10 records FREE. In that way, the cost to you is only 31 1/5 cents per record—making this truly the musical opportunity of a lifetime and the musical value of the century!

A handsome chest, finished in rich walnut and designed to house this magnificent library, is available to those who purchase this library of records for slight additional cost.

STRIKES HIT SERIOUS BLOW AT DEFENSE

By the Associated Press

Striking CIO and A. F. of L. machinists declined today to return to their jobs at 11 San Francisco shipyards, despite a personal appeal from California's Governor Culbert L. Olson that they lay aside their grievances in the interest of patriotism.

The yards, where the strike has been in progress 12 days, hold $500,000,000 worth of defense orders.

APPEALS TO STRIKERS

John Frey, head of the Metal Trades Department of the AFL, declared that regardless of the machinists' position, he and other AFL leaders would lead 15,000 shipbuilders back to work today—"and God help the man who tries to stop me."

Governor Olson appealed to the strikers at a meeting last night, but they rejected his resume-work proposal by a vote announced by union officials at 1702 to 355.

In Ravenna, O., a strike of AFL unionists tied up construction work on a $30,000,000 shell-loading plant.

At Lorain, O., a shipyard strike ended when machinists were given wage increases by the American Shipbuilding Co.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey announced in Detroit that an agreement to end a strike of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) Union against Hudson Motor Co. had been reached.

From San Francisco came word that a settlement seemed near in a canneries strike which asparagus growers said had already cost them $1,000,000 in losses.

Direct negotiations between the southern operators and the union were broken off in New York this morning amid an outburst of name-calling by both sides.

The southern operators charged in a national advertising campaign that UMW President John L. Lewis would become "dictator of the country" if the industry accepted the new wage and working conditions contract.

WEATHER

Official U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast

LOCAL: Fair tonight, slightly warmer than last night; Thursday fair and continued warm; gentle to moderate southwesterly winds tonight and Thursday; lowest temperature tonight near 58 degrees.

MAINE: Fairly cloudy, widely scattered showers and thunderstorms in east and north portions tonight and Thursday, somewhat cooler in north portion Thursday, moderate to fresh westerly winds in extreme north portion tonight, diminishing Thursday.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Fairly cloudy, widely scattered showers and thunderstorms in north portion Thursday, cooler in north portion Thursday.

CONNECTICUT AND RHODE ISLAND: Fair tonight and Thursday, slightly warmer tonight, continued warm Thursday.

VERMONT: Fairly cloudy, widely scattered showers and thunderstorms tonight and Thursday, cooler Thursday.

GENERAL CONDITIONS: The cool, dry air which has been over New England for the past several days will give way to a current of warmer, more moist air from the south and southwest today. Temperatures will rise into the upper 60's over most of New England except along the coast, where it will be not quite so warm. While the moist current of air from the south will cause increasing cloudiness over the extreme northern sections of New England with scattered light showers occurring tonight and Thursday, the weather over the southern sections is expected to remain fair.

This Lochinvar Loses Girl

KANSAS CITY, May 21 (AP)—Mary Helen Linger may be wed before Friday, but not to the Arkansas Lochinvar who followed her home from the Kentucky Derby by motorcycle.

Bridegroom of the comely Kansas City blonde, daughter of John M. Linger, real estate board president, will be John West, former Stanford University heavyweight boxing champion.

West came here from San Francisco as soon as work would permit after reading of his fiancée's attraction for Earl Lee Archer, University of Arkansas sophomore.

Mary Helen explained she never really met Archer anyway. Closest she came was when he waved from his motorcycle and handed her a note as she drove by with her father. She wouldn't even know the young man who bumped across two states and spent a night in jail—free lodging—in futile quest of a word with her.

He had a word with her father instead and went back to school in Fayetteville, possibly to write a love note.

Whether he ever wrote it isn't known. But West doesn't care. He agrees with Mary Helen that the marriage they've planned since last summer should be soon.

RIFT SEEN—June Brewster, one-time Earl Carroll show girl and film actress, has separated from Guy McAfee, coast sportsman... according to friends' reports. They said she will file for divorce when property settlement is negotiated. McAfees were married in 1936.

New Bedford Faces Big Strike

NEW BEDFORD, May 21—A general textile strike, such as closed every mill in the city for six months in 1928, was debated here today as the executive committee of the New Bedford Textile Council sought to compel settlement of a jurisdictional dispute between the council and the Central Labor Union. More than 20,000 workers would be affected.

Both groups are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, with the council composed entirely of textile workers unions and the Central Labor Union embracing a number of labor unions, some of them textile units.

The dispute came to a head when a group of 30 drawing-in girls were called out on strike at the Hathaway Mills. Their work stoppage forced closing the mill, which employs 1500.

Troopers Guard Ford Plant Vote

DETROIT, May 21 (AP)—Believing in the largest employee election of National Labor Relations Board history began early today at the River Rouge and Lincoln plants of the Ford Motor Co., with 170 state troopers stationed throughout the plant areas.

Confronting more than 80,000 employees eligible to vote was the issue of union representation, which matched the United Automobile Workers (CIO) against the American Federation of Labor federal union.

1,202,348 Employees In Federal Bureaus

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—The number of civilian-employees of the executive branch of the federal government reached a new all-time high of 1,202,348 at the end of March, the census bureau announced today. The previous high of 1,184,521 was recorded last December. The March civilian payroll was $184,244,306.

U.S. Demands Vichy State Nazi Aid Aims

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—The United States, it was learned authoritatively today, has made the equivalent of a diplomatic call on the Vichy government for a forthright declaration of France's future intentions in "collaborating" with Germany.

Vichy has been given to understand, it was said, that it cannot hope to restore Franco-American relations to harmony unless it is first prepared to supply full assurances in writing that France will hold rigidly to the terms of the June, 1940, armistice in all subsequent dealings with the Third Reich.

Secretary Hull's sternly worded explanation of U. S. views to French Ambassador Henry-Hay contained the diplomatic cue, informed sources asserted, that a formal note, putting France on record, was the only solution.

UNCERTAINTY INCREASES

The uncertainty over French intentions meanwhile increased overnight with the news from Martinique that the French cruiser Emile Bertin and the aircraft carrier Bearn had been out to sea for what the commanding admiral called "routine exercises."

The officer was quoted as saying:

that no real preparations for the ships' departure were being made. As far as is known here, this was the first time the vessels have ventured out of port since they berthed at the French colony in the Caribbean when France fell last year.

Informed sources were slow to accept the Martinique explanation that the purpose, in part, was to keep up the morale of the crews.

VEILED WARNING

One theory advanced was that the "exercises" constituted a veiled warning to the United States that the warships were ready to resist any attempt to make the island a hemisphere protectorate, should the course of Franco-German "collaboration" so warrant.

Another conjecture was that the ships were making ready for a dash through the British blockade for some French base in Europe or North Africa. Such an attempt, it was said, would pose a difficult problem for the United States, for this country is unsympathetic to the thought of the two ships eventually finding their way into Axis hands.

French Ready To Scuttle Ships

LONDON, May 21 (AP)—The French admiralty has instructed masters of French merchantmen to scuttle ships if intercepted by British warships, the British ministry of economic warfare declared today.

The ministry statement said that a copy of such instructions which had come into British possession was signed for Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan by a rear admiral named Auphan.

VOLUNTARY CENSORSHIP TIGHTER IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 21 (INS)—Voluntary press and radio censorship news of "actual or intended movements of any vessels used to aid Britain or other democracies" was asked by the U. S. Maritime Commission today.

Chairman Emory S. Land announced he had sent to editors of newspapers, radio stations, magazines, press services and other distributors of public information the following letter:

"Newspapers, radio, magazines, press services and other sources of public information have been co-operating with the Navy Department in withholding stories or references to naval ship movements and other matters of military or naval importance. This co-operation has been extended to the movements of British naval vessels in United States waters.

The movement of United States merchant vessels, which are aiding the democracies is of equal importance. Dissemination about such movements is equally undesirable.

"The Maritime Commission requests that, effective immediately, no publicity be given to the following subjects unless announced or authorized by the Maritime Commission:

"1—Actual or intended movements of any vessels used to aid Britain or other democracies. This will particularly apply at this time to sailings to the Red sea and China (including Rangoon) and feeder services.

"2—Names or lines or characteristics of vessels being used to aid the democracies.

"3—Arrivals or departures of such vessels.

"4—Carriage of such vessels.

"The commission will issue information of public interest to the extent possible consistent with safeguarding ship movements."

A spokesman for the commission interpreted Admiral Land's letter as calling for voluntary censorship on movements of war materials from Latin American countries to the United States for transshipment to Great Britain.

Nazi Raids Few Over Britain

LONDON, May 21 (AP)—The British air and home security ministries issued the following joint communique today:

"Enemy activity last night was on a small scale. The main effort was directed against the southwest. A few bombs were dropped at places elsewhere.

"At one place in South Wales and at another in East Anglia there was some damage and a small number of casualties."

British Battle Near Addis Ababa

By the Associated Press

An authoritative London source said today British troops in Ethiopia were in contact with the Italians about 45 miles north of Soddu, south of Addis Ababa.

The only report on fighting in the Salum sector of the Libyan front in North Africa said British artillery blew up an Axis ammunition dump Monday west of the Egyptian border outpost.

Some claimed British forces had suffered serious losses in men and materials in the Tobruk and Salum areas.

Rome also said German planes bombed Malta again Monday night, hitting artillery emplacements and searchlights and setting a number of fires. Two British planes were said to have been destroyed on the ground and one was reported shot down.

DNE, official German news agency, said Nazi fighters shot down five or six Bristol-Blenheim bombers which attacked Ft. Capuzzo, just across the Egyptian frontier in Libya, this morning.

South of Addis Ababa British forces were reported closing in on the remnants of two Italian divisions, having captured an Italian brigadier and other prisoners.

German sources denied today the statement by Prime Minister Churchill yesterday that the Axis front lines in the Salum front were filled by Germans alone. These sources declared Italians are fighting alongside the Germans both at Salum and Tobruk.

A French dispatch from Bagdad said Iraq forces in attacks on British positions at the Habbanah air base inflicted heavy losses.

'CHUTE INVADERS GAIN BASES IN CRETE; THOUSANDS LAND

chute troops in Crete would be made today.

SECOND ASSAULT

Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today that the battle of Crete would continue with "increasing severity."

The German invaders were delivered by aerial transports and aided in by glider and parachute, the prime minister said, bringing forward the running account he gave it with first news of the invasion yesterday.

He told of a second assault on Suda Bay which, although available only to shallow draft vessels, is Crete's best anchorage.

STRATEGIC POINTS

Canea, the island capital to which King George II of Nazi-occupied Greece has shifted his government, is less than five miles from Suda Bay.

On the northwest corner of the island, it is closest to the southern Greek airdromes from which the Germans are launching their sustained aerial invasion attempt.

Berlin claimed that her air-borne troops have occupied several points of strategic, tactical importance in Crete. Parachutists landed in clusters near spots they had been directed to occupy, a Nazi spokesman said after heavy attacks on the defense positions by the Luftwaffe's bombers.

The spokesman called the action "daring."

"In the Suda bay area," Churchill said, "further air-borne attacks commenced at 4:30 p. m. yesterday."

"About 3000 men were dropped and by 6:30 p. m. the greater part of these had been accounted for."

The House broke into cheers and Churchill went on:

"The fighting continued and the situation was reported in hand at 9 o'clock."

"The method of the attack was Stukas and Messerschmitts followed by gliders and parachutes."

"In the Heraklion (Candia) and Reimio areas, the attacks began at 5:30 by parachutes and troop-carrying aircraft, many of which crashed, also landed."

"There are no details yet. Of course, we must expect that the fighting will continue in increasing severity."

In Cairo, the Middle East command said German parachute and air-borne troops had suffered "serious losses" and that one detachment which penetrated the outskirts of Canea yesterday was "quickly surrounded and accounted for."

UNIFORMS OF TOMMIES

Heavy bombers of the RAF smashed last night at the Greek mainland bases of the German air invasion, but detailed results are not yet available, the Middle East command also reported.

Churchill, answering a question, reiterated his statement of yesterday that the first German parachutists were New Zealand battle dress and added that the government had also been informed that some Nazi aerialists were in the battle uniforms of English Tommies.

As to whether such prisoners would be put to death on the spot as spies, Churchill said he was "not sufficiently informed on the exact circumstances."

The Germans have denied their forces used New Zealand uniforms.

"We must leave a certain amount of discretion to those on the spot," the prime minister added.

Today's attack apparently followed the pattern of the initial assault yesterday, when the Germans began landing by parachute, glider and transport plane after a heavy aerial bombardment.

50 TO 10 IN PLANE

Operating from bases on the miles away, the Germans were said to be employing huge new Focke-

Wulf air transports capable of carrying 50 to 70 men each.

The gliders employed in the landings, the British declared, were cut loose from towing planes at a great height many miles away from their objectives and coasted in without the tell-tale drone of motors.

Some of the troop-carrying planes were reported shot down, but no figures were given.

News dispatches from Cairo quoted official Greek sources as saying all the German troops which landed yesterday had been killed or captured; but there was no official confirmation of this in London.

WHOLE DIVISION USED

Military men here said a German air-borne division, such as the one reported engaged in the attempted invasion of Crete, consists of two infantry regiments, one artillery regiment armed with 75-millimeter guns, an anti-tank artillery battalion with 37-mm. guns, a motorcycle reconnaissance unit, a signal corps and a detachment of engineers.

Such a division, it was said, probably uses about 250 planes, each of which is expected to make three or four trips carrying troops and towing gliders.

The technique is to drop parachutists first. If they are successful in establishing a base they put out signals and the troop-carrying planes attempt to land.

Thus far there have been no reports that the Germans have landed tanks in Crete by air.

WARN GERMANS

The British radio, meantime, following up an assertion by Prime Minister Winston Churchill that the invaders were New Zealand battle-dress, broadcast this warning to Germany's armed forces:

"Every German soldier must know that whoever, in violation of international law, fights in an enemy uniform, must expect to be shot at once when taken prisoner."

British said the forces stationed on Crete were deemed adequate to deal with any attempt at invasion from the skies, but made no effort to minimize the military importance of the situation.

Berlin Claims Vital Crete Points Captured

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, May 21.—German parachute units have captured strategically important points on the Greek island of Crete as a result of their sudden air-borne assault.

This claim was put forward today in an official German announcement which said the operations were proceeding "according to plan" and fighting was continuing.

German bombers were supporting the invading forces, the announcement said.

Landings of the German air troops in Crete were preceded by what the German high command called a "sacrificed" Stuka dive-bombing bombardment.

The announcement said fighting began the moment German troops landed as the British had not been surprised by the attack.

Contradicting Prime Minister Churchill's claims the parachutists had been defeated, German military officials said the operations had advanced successfully to an important stage.

It was announced officially the Germans were wearing regulation German army uniforms issued for service in Africa.

Navy Gets 1304 Planes in Year, Knox Says

WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—Secretary Knox disclosed today the Navy's air force had received a reinforcement of 1304 planes during the last year.

Reporting on expansion of the air branch, Knox said that on May 1 the Navy had 8476 planes of all types in service, compared with 2172 one year earlier.

Deliveries have speeded up materially this spring, Knox told his press conference, and since January 1, 996 planes had been delivered, contrasted with only 79 in the same period last year.

Aiso, Knox said the Navy was "very busy" on proposals for relatively small, improvised plane carriers to protect American merchant ships on the high seas.

The fast former cargo carrier Normacmial already is being converted experimentally into a carrier, but Knox said recent that no other ship like it was then being reconstructed for like service.

Knox said that approximately half of the planes delivered to the Navy last year went to Britain and that this proportion of sharing was generally being adhered to.

About 36 long range consolidated patrol bombers were delivered in each of the months of April and May, and about half went to Britain, he said.

PENNSYLVANIA DRAFT TEST MAY BE APPLIED TO NATION

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 21 (AP)—Pennsylvania became the testing ground for the nation today as the U. S. Army summoned 18,967 men for physical examinations under an experimental "waiting period" induction plan devised to give the Selective Service registrants "a break."

For a month the men will report to eight Army stations for final physical examinations. Those who pass will return home subject to call within 10 to 30 days. Those rejected will resume their normal life.

Previously, men called from the commonwealth's 422 local draft boards went into service immediately after passing final physical tests.

Dr. William Mather Lewis, Pennsylvania director of selective service, said he had been informed the plan, if successful, "will be applied to the entire nation."

The plan is designed to give the registrant more time to adjust his affairs before entering the Army.

FIERY LOVE LETTERS READ IN BLONDE'S TRIAL FOR MURDER

she said. Eight days later he was dead, stretched on the floor of Mrs. Steadman's apartment in Brighton st., West End, strangled with a length of rope after he had been fed sleeping potions.

"On Jan. 13, before your husband left home, did he have anything to say?" asked Prosecutor Sullivan.

NOTICED RIVAL'S ACTIONS

Q—Was anyone present when he spoke to you about his relationship with the defendant? A—The children were around when the conversation took place. They were in the next room.

Q—You told of being at a party on Aug. 31 at Francis Stanwood's home and you testified that you and your husband drove the Steadmans, who sat in the rear seat, home. Is that correct. A—Yes.

Q—At that time did you observe the conduct of the defendant toward your husband? A—Yes.

Q—What was your observation? There was an objection by Defense Counsel Edward F. Flynn and the question was dropped.

IDENTIFIES LETTERS

Q—Was there any talk after that party on Sept. 14 between Kenneth and his wife? A—Yes.

Q—I show you these letters. Three of them and two blue notes. Did you ever see these envelopes before? A—Yes.

Q—Where? A—I first saw them at the Whittemore apartment at 125 Boylston st., Jamaica Plain.

Q—Who were they addressed to? A—My husband.

Sullivan then offered the letters in evidence, and Atty. Flynn objected. There was a bench conference, and Flynn took the letters to read. After he had been reading some time Sullivan said:

"May I have a recess, your honor? It looks as though this will take some time?"

"BOBBY, DARLING"

Flynn paid no attention, finishing reading, and showed the letters to Mrs. Steadman, who nodded her head. The letters were admitted. "The first letter I am going to read to you," Sullivan then began, "is postmarked Oct. 13, 1940, from New York City, and is addressed to Mr. Robert Emery, 125 Boylston st., Jamaica Plain. It was sent air mail.

"This is it: '1:30 p. m. Bobby darling. A week from now you'll be with me. Oh my, I don't know where to start. He wanted to know where I was going, but I didn't tell him. He asked me. Naturally he wanted to know where I was going. But my going away wasn't mentioned.'"

"Well, K. kept asking if I couldn't tell him where I was going, up to the last second. I was so afraid that he would follow me that I was a nervous wreck. He thinks that I was going where I did before, to work in exchange for treatment. (He doesn't know what kind.)"

"OH, BOBBY, I LOVE YOU"

"Friday K. said 'You haven't packed yet.' I had two bags packed and I packed a third one and here I am with three bags of things I really want. I registered here as Scott because of conditions."

"If K. ever took it into his head to check up, Steadman would be to say to find I registered from Concord, N. H., and I had no more than registered and I discovered the desk clerk came from Manchester."

"He asked me about New Hampshire and because I didn't know I told him I hadn't lived there long."

"Oh, Bobby darling, I love you! I am certainly causing you a bunch of trouble. But I'll know my way around pretty soon. If I don't get a drink pretty soon I'll dry up."

The letter then explained she had made an appointment with a friend of Emery's in New York named Garrity and they were going out to have a drink.

"K. DOESN'T SUSPECT"

"I sat around the hotel knitting and listening to a good symphony on the radio," the letter continued.

"You know what—I think I like New York."

The next paragraph revealed that she didn't have much money. Sullivan read on:

"The trouble is, I had to leave before Kenneth's pay day. I thought I'd better get out when I could and I may have to borrow some money from Robert (Garrity) to get along. I hope you won't be offended if I do."

"I was lying in my bed in the hotel last night and I had a silly illusion of seeing you in the doorway. Oh, I wish you could be here with me."

"I'm going walking over to Rockefeller Center. Oh, write to me, darling. I love you, Bobby K. still doesn't suspect anyone else, although he's asked some peculiar questions."

"I meant to ask how your session with Ruth made out. I love you, Bobby, write to me. Ruth."

"WAITING FOR HELL"

Sullivan put that letter down and picked up another.

"This is postmarked Oct. 7, 1940, Crofton, Penn., air mail, to Robert Emery, 125 Boylston st., Jamaica Plain. It goes:

"Bobby, 10 a. m."

"Bobby, darling, I love you so much that the mere thought of not seeing you or being with you makes me sick."

NEVER TO RETURN

"When I receive letters from you, that is the only time I am not that way. I don't want anything to go haywire on your end over this. Golly, I hope that when I do go, K. won't insist where I am going or come to the train with me."

"Bobby, darling, could we really go on a vacation together? You won't need much money for me. I want to ride someplace with you and never come back."

"It is going to be hell for me until we are together again. I need you so badly, but your love has helped me."

"Darling, I don't want you to have me on your hands and have people say what they did about our trying to get rid of him. I won't live longer than you want me to."

"I love you."

"ME."

IDENTIFY "K" AS HUSBAND

Following the reading of the letters, Mrs. Emery identified the "K" of the letters as Kenneth, the defendant's husband. Mrs. Steadman morrow. If not, Wednesday noon.

"You know, I dreamed of you last night, and we were right together. By the way, how is my friend Garrity? I hope you weren't offended by anything I said to Garrity. (Sullivan in his opening address had stated that during that trip she told Garrity she was about to become a mother.)

"Bobby, I want to hold your hand and have you near me. I love you."

"RUTH."

SICK OVER HER LOVE

The third letter Sullivan read was dated Oct. 9, from Crofton also. Sullivan read:

"Bobby, darling: It's a wonder I know what day it is. Bobby, darling, stop loving me."

"I love you more than you know. It seems impossible and I wish my mind would stop going around."

"I called K. a short time ago. All he wants to know is why I went away—simple, huh? For me it is nothing more than lies."

"In about a week I will have to say that I have to go back for a checkup. When I talk to him at the office he is all right but when I get home he puts questions to me."

"Bobby, darling, I love you so much that the mere thought of not seeing you or being with you makes me sick."

"When I receive letters from you, that is the only time I am not that way. I don't want anything to go haywire on your end over this. Golly, I hope that when I do go, K. won't insist where I am going or come to the train with me."

"Bobby, darling, could we really go on a vacation together? You won't need much money for me. I want to ride someplace with you and never come back."

"It is going to be hell for me until we are together again. I need you so badly, but your love has helped me."

"Darling, I don't want you to have me on your hands and have people say what they did about our trying to get rid of him. I won't live longer than you want me to."

"I love you."

"ME."

IDENTIFY "K" AS HUSBAND

Following the reading of the letters, Mrs. Emery identified the "K" of the letters as Kenneth, the defendant's husband. Mrs. Steadman man's counsel objected but the court made no ruling.

The Atty. Flynn took over cross-examination.

Q—When you first knew your husband, where was he working? A—The Boston Herald.

Q—Did you know any of your husband's acquaintances at the Boston Herald? A—Yes.

Q—Was your husband associated with a Mr. John Hughes and a Mr. Richard Frantz? A—Yes.

Q—Where is Mr. Hughes now? A—He's dead.

Q—Where is Mr. Pratt now? A—Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

Q—Describe your husband's physical appearance. A—He stood five feet eleven, weighed 185 pounds, and had a cheerful disposition. During the summer and winter of 1940 he wore no hat. He wore white shoes all year round.

FINANCIAL TROUBLE

She then testified she and her husband paid $30 a month rent for their home in Natick.

Q—On the night of Sept. 14, when you discovered the defendant and your husband in a car parked in Dover, were they asleep? A—No.

Q—Had both of them been drinking? A—Yes.

Q—That was quite evident, wasn't it? A—Yes.

Q—In September of 1940 you knew your husband's finances were in bad shape? A—I didn't know at that time.

Q—In October did you know? A—Yes.

Q—It is true, Mrs. Emery, that your phone had been disconnected because of non-payment? A—Yes.

HAD ONLY A DOLLAR

Q—Your husband discussed his financial problems in the fall of 1940 with you? A—Yes.

Mrs. Emery replied softly:

"He said, 'I hope everything will be straightened out before long. I'll be back soon and then things will get back to their normal course.' He spoke of going to New York for a job, because he definitely needed me."

Q—When did you first become suspicious of the relationship between your husband and the defendant? A—Sept. 14 was the first time I became suspicious of my husband.

Q—What was the state of his health at that time? A—He was in very good health.

Q—Did your suspicion of your husband and the defendant progress from that time? A—Yes.

Saturday Evening Post
Backs F. D. War on Hitler

PHILADELPHIA, May 21 (INS).—The Saturday Evening Post today pledged support to what it termed the "American crusade" to destroy Adolf Hitler, declaring that aim to be the aim of the Administration rather than a national defense program.

The Post made known its stand on the same editorial page which, until this issue, has carried many expressions in favor of non-intervention. The editorial said:

"A time comes when every American must somehow resolve one simple question. If for anything you could do about it, your country nevertheless becomes involved in war, where are you going to stand? Many keep saying that time has not come. But do they see what the world reads on the American banner?"

"The American government has proclaimed that Hitler must be destroyed. It has solemnly pledged itself before the world to employ its total resources to bring that result to pass.

"To speak of this as national defense is absurd. It is the American crusade.

"Everyone must be aware of what it will mean to go on. Do we see what it will mean to go back? The peril in that case is no less, maybe even greater. In going on we face the possibility of defeat without it we can imagine it or not. But to go back is to face the possibility of national defeat.

"That is the reality as we see it; that is the reality we accept. It was not inevitable; that we admit and argue it no more."

Printer's ink has stained the fingers of a number of women who enjoy Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's friendship—part of the capital "petticoatery." Personalities and adventures of these ladies of the press are described by Vesta Kelling in this second article of a series.

By VESTA KELLING

WASHINGTON, May 21 (The Special News Service).—When Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was due to make her entrance at the White House for the first time as its mistress after the President's inauguration in 1933, she turned to Lorena Hickcock, at her side as a reporter for the Associated Press, and said:

"Why don't we walk?"

The two entered the grounds of the Executive Mansion together on foot, and ever since Mrs. Roosevelt has numbered among her close friends not only Miss Hickcock but a good many other newspaper women, and has become a lady of the press herself.

In the early days of the New Deal Mrs. Roosevelt might have been found with an apron tied around her, helping her dishes in some modest apartment belonging to lady newshawks.

HOPKINS' AIDE

In the summer of 1932 Miss Hickcock became confidential advisor to Harry L. Hopkins, then federal relief administrator, for whom she traveled all over the country, making exhaustive reports on employment and relief which Mrs. Roosevelt made a point of seeing and which are said to have figured in her talks with the President.

Mrs. Roosevelt never forgets birthdays of her friends and their children. She even sends Valentines.

One was Bess Furman (Mrs. Robert B. Armstrong, Jr.), then with the Associated Press, who resigned in 1937 before the birth of twins, a son and daughter.

Bess Furman, like so many of Mrs. Roosevelt's friends a career woman, did not "enter" newspaper work, she says. She was born to it in Darbury, Noh., where her father ran a paper and she started out as a youngster setting type, folding papers and writing items. She has covered four national presidential conventions.

Another was Emma Buebee, only woman reporter on the New York Herald-Tribune, a Republican who always has had a special interest in the White House since she picked it during suffrage campaigning days.

She was astonished by being taken on a tour, with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Among the hordes of immigrants from Europe who swarmed ashore at Ellis Island one day in 1921 was a girl who, despite the fact that she carried her belongings in a pack seemed to know her way about. She was a newspaper woman from Chicago who had crossed from Ireland steerage, tried to subsist on the food given immigrants and witnessed the then dreadful conditions under which hopeful foreigners were welcomed to the land of the free.

Her name was Genevieve Forbes, who later added Herrick to her by-line, and today she is one of the newspaper women most likely to be found at the White House parties.

Smartly dressed, brilliant in conversation, "Genevieve" is now a freelance writer and lives in an old colonial house in Alexandria, Va., near Washington.

Night Defense Show Tomorrow

With five monster Army searchlights set up in the area of the Common, Boston tomorrow night will witness its first large scale anti-aircraft demonstration by night. The show, staged in the interest of flying cadet work, will be given by soldiers of Battery A of the 194th Coast Artillery from Camp Edwards, with planes from the Sixth Army Corps of Providence furnishing sky targets. The big searchlights will be brought over the road from the camp at Bourne and guarded during their stay in Boston by a police detail.

Desserts With Ingenuity

By MARTHA LEE

INGENUITY is probably the largest ingredient that goes to make the difference between a commonplace dessert, and one you can be proud to put before friends. New flavor combinations, attractive colors, and unusual textures are some of the means by which desserts can be taken out of the ordinary class.

There's plenty of ingenuity and originality of flavor and color in the following recipe for Nectar Two-Layer Gelatin Mold. Sliced strawberries are colorful and appetizingly effective in giving flavor to plain gelatin if recipe directions are followed. For the second layer your own choice among the whole fruit nectars can be used—apricot, plum, pear, peach or peaches and nectarines blended—supplies an attractive creamy and fluffy whipped gelatin contrast. The extra richness of such desserts is the result of the pulp-and-juice fruitiness of these crushed delicious whole fruits.

NECTAR TWO LAYER GELATIN MOLD

Berry Layer:
4 cup boiling water
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tbs. plain gelatin
2 tbs. cold water
3 cups sliced strawberries
Combine boiling water and sugar and stir to melt sugar. Add gelatin moistened in cold water and stir to dissolve. Pour over berries and stir blend. Pour into a mold or pan (about 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches) and chill until firm.
Nectar Layer:
1 1/2 cups whole-fruit nectar
Few grains salt
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tbs. plain gelatin
2 tbs. cold water
Whipped cream for garnish
Combine nectar, salt and sugar and heat to boiling. Add gelatin moistened in cold water and stir to dissolve. Chill until congealed but not firm. Whip until light and foamy. Pour over chilled berry mixture and chill until very firm. Unmold onto serving plate and spread with unseasoned whipped cream. Slice to serve. Use apricot, plum, pear, peach or peach-nectarine nectar of the whole-fruit variety. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

And for those warm days ahead when we start to talk about "one hot dish" in otherwise cool meals, let's keep this recipe on hand—Peach Nectarine Fruit Dimples. This hot dish may easily be the dessert. This recipe also uses nectars, which thicken to sauce consistency as the dumplings bake. Merely pour the sweetened whole-fruit nectar over the prepared dumplings. And here again one of the group of nectars mentioned above is interchangeable. The sauce bakes into the dumplings, and yet there's sauce for serving them as well.

And Need To Build Up Red Blood!
If pain and distress of functional monthly disturbances make you feel weak, dragged out, pale, cranky, nervous at such times—try Lydia Pinkham's Tablets (with added iron). Pinkham's Tablets not only relieve monthly pain (headache, backache), but ALSO help soothe upset nerves due to female periodic complaints. Wonderful to help build up red blood and thus aid in promoting more strength. Hundreds of thousands of women remarkably helped. Worth trying!

PEACH-NECTARINE FRUIT DUMPLING

Dough:
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 tbs. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
6 tbs. shortening
1/2 cup table cream or rich top milk
1/2 cup milk
Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Work shortening into flour mixture; add cream and milk and mix. Roll dough thin on a floured board. Cut into 8 equal squares (approximately 4 1/2 inches).

Filling:
1 1/2 cups cooked prunes
1 medium-sized apple
1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 tsp. cinnamon

3 cups peach-nectarine nectar
1/2 cup butter
Put and slice prunes fine. Pare apple and cut into paper-thin slices. Combine prunes, apple, 1 cup sugar and spice and stir to blend. Place a portion of filling in center of each square of dough; bring corners of dough together, envelope fashion, over filling and pinch edges together. Combine nectar and 1/2 cup sugar in a large baking pan and head to boiling; remove from heat. Place dumplings in nectar mixture, smooth side down, and dot with butter. Bake uncovered in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes, raise temperature to 475 deg. F. and continue baking about 10 to 12 minutes, to brown. Serve hot with nectar mixture from baking pan as sauce. Makes 8 servings.
Note: These dumplings are large. Dough and filling may be divided into 10 dumplings.

You Can Be Beautiful

An Ointment for Dry Hair

By ARLINE GOULD

DON'T BE a ditherer when it comes to anything as serious as reconditioning your hair . . . either for a permanent, or because it is becoming alarmingly thin. Dithering results from not knowing what to do about hair difficulties, like a sensitive, dry scalp . . . so just calm down and smooth into your scalp a wonderful restorative ointment.

You'll find that flakiness and dryness will be a thing of the past two days after you've started to use it . . . and in a few weeks there should be a noticeable thickening.

There is an "analeptic" ointment which has been named that because it is so wonderfully restorative . . . it fires the scalp of clogging wastes . . . it immediately soothes an irritated feeling . . . and the result is that follicles are stimulated, which gave the hair a chance to become stronger and glossier.

This is a 24-hour help . . . a day in and week out aid . . . because, if you apply it correctly, the analleptic ointment may be used before and between shampoos. Your scalp is cleared of waste and softened immediately . . . and that is why you can make collar-lifting flakes literally a thing of the past.

This is especially true when a flaky condition seems to be aggravated, as it does during certain times of the year. Be sure, then, to be ready to use the ointment steadily, day after day, when you notice that your scalp is acting up.

We might point right now to the fact that such an ointment should be as much of a grooming necessity for a man as his military brushes . . . if not more so. The idea . . . in using the ointment . . . is to apply an infinitesimal quantity of it directly to the scalp, avoiding the hair. The ointment is so rich, so absorbent and "ready" that a tiny bit goes a long way. It may be used every day, or several times between shampoos, as your scalp condition indicates.

To learn about this restorative ointment for dry scalps and thinning hair, phone Arline Gould, LJBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PEACH CRISP PUDDING

2 cups dried dried peaches
2 cups water
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup honey
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 tsp. cloves
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. vanilla extract
3 1/2 cups 1/4-inch toasted bread cubes
2 cups corn flakes
Soak peaches in boiling water 10 minutes. Drain, add water and sugar, cook covered for 30 minutes. Remove from heat and add honey; stir until well mixed. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and beat well. Stir in spices, flavoring, bread cubes and corn flakes. Place 1/2 of mixture in buttered baking pan. Spread peaches evenly over top, cover with remaining creamed mixture. Bake in moderate oven (325 deg. F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 8 servings (8x8-inch pan).

Love

And Marriage Exchange of Greetings

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Over a year ago I became acquainted with a young lady, and at once I knew that I would like to know her better. But I'm too far away, and at the same time too shy, to see her very often. Last Christmas I sent her a card, which she never acknowledged. I thought she'd forgotten me, but on Valentine's Day I received a lovely valentine from her with a verse on it that has me puzzled.

Do you think it would be all right to write her a letter, thanking her for the valentine, and in that way start up a correspondence?

KENNETH

It would be quite all right to send the young lady a note, telling her that you appreciated the valentine she sent, and that you still remember the pleasant times you had together whenever you saw each other. Perhaps it might be a good idea to send her a box of candy or a bouquet of pretty spring flowers. I'm sure this would start a friendship. Good luck to you.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My fiancée and I have decided to ask your advice about a few things. I'm a boxer and have to follow strict regulations. Since I'm finished with amateur boxing, I think I should keep these regulations, preparing for the time when I might go places in the boxing field. When I visit my fiancée and want to go home early, she gets angry, and doesn't understand that I must get plenty of rest to keep fit.

I see her four nights a week, but can't see her before 8:30 which doesn't give us much time together. But why should she become angry when she knows it's for the good of both of us?

We are both 24 years old and have been engaged over a year. What do you advise to help us stop our quarrelling?

CHAMBERLAIN

While it's highly flattering that your girl wants to keep you longer when you spend an evening with her, at the same time she's unreasonable in expecting you to break training rules. If you can't make her understand this, better take your hat and go home in time to get a good night's rest.

No doubt she'd feel badly if you didn't qualify as a boxer.

Wants to Show Appreciation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

About a month ago I was a guest at a very small and delightful dinner. It was not possible for me to invite my hostess to dine or to any kind of party, but I would like to make some bow of appreciation.

What would you think about my sending them some flowers or a plant sometime soon?

GLORIA.

This is a perfect idea for your remembrance of this hospitality. Sending flowers are appealing these days and instead of enclosing a card, why not write a friendly little note of appreciation?

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Even though gentlemen may prefer blondes, Ginger Rogers would rather be a brunette. She says she feels less conspicuous with dark hair.

If almost any other celebrity had told me this, I might have thought she was just making conversation. But Ginger is still the little girl from Independence, Missouri, who worked hard and made good and whose success seems to have gone to her dancing feet instead of her head. She really doesn't angle for the limelight.

Ginger has one of the loveliest figures you can imagine. She is so lithe and supple! And although she weighs only 110 pounds for her height of five feet, four inches, she is not thin. She is slim and her weight is beautifully distributed, as you can see from a glance at her measurements: Bust, 33½ inches; waist, a neat 23 inches; hips, 33 inches; thigh, 19½ inches, and calf 13½ inches.

EXERCISES REGULARLY

Ginger is one of Hollywood's most perfect examples of what exercise will do for a girl. She is beautifully proportioned without an ounce of fat. In fact, she could weigh a few pounds more without exceeding the streamline standard.

One of the things about Ginger that interests me most is her exercise program for regaining the dozen or so pounds she regularly sheds while making a picture. You might suppose that too much exercise is what causes her to lose weight in the first place and that she would be glad to lie around and do nothing after a dance picture. But no. Ginger says it is the nervous strain connected with having a dance routine perfect for the camera that causes the pounds to vanish. She finds outdoor activity away from the grind both exhilarating and relaxing.

And there, it seems to me, is a worthwhile tip for you hardworking, nervous, thin girls who could do with a building up program. If anyone whose work itself is exercise feels the need of tennis, badminton and swimming, as a counterbalance to nervous strain, then certainly most of you who work in offices could do with more outdoor sports.

SHUNS MAKEUP
Ginger's beauty "secrets" are refreshingly simple. She relies on plenty of soap, a rough washcloth and lukewarm water. Because she must use make-up for the camera, she likes to give her skin a rest between times.

It is a strict rule of hers to go without make-up of any kind for as long as she has had to use heavy make-up.

Oh, yes, on the day of this interview, Ginger was a brunette and a very lovely one. But it seems to me that she is a more striking blonde.

Your Dietitian,

IDA JEAN KAIN.

WILL MAJOR BOWES RESIGN POST?
By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 21.—GEN. GEORGE MARSHALL: Next month the only son of the second most famous man in America will enlist in the U. S. Army . . . I. LUBIN: Your designation as economic advisor to the President will be announced sometime this week . . . HANS THOMASEN: William S. Knudsen studied all the conflicting dispatches concerning Rudolf Hess' flight to Scotland, and the various explanations for it. Knudsen made but one comment: "I only hope that the reasons for Mr. Hess' leaving Germany were not trivial!" . . . MAJOR BOWES: Are you planning to resign your long-held job as director of the Capitol Theater? . . . MAYOR LA GUARDIA: "The last of the Poillon Sisters, who were so famous in the annals of New York, again will be involved in a law suit—this time, against Ed Reilly, in the 8th District Municipal Court, on June 4 . . . FANNIE BRICE: The British cable-censor now permits Bea Lillie to use whatever signature she wants. And so Lady Peel's cables of last week were signed: "Barrage Balla Peel."

AMBASSADOR OUMAN-
SKY: Jan Valtin was being questioned about the authenticity of the contents of his best-seller, "Out of the Night" . . . "Why is it," Valtin was asked, "when, in your book, you reported a killing by an OGPU man, you always described it as an 'assassination'; but when you reported any killing done by a Gestapo man, you always described it as a 'brutal murder'?" . . . "After all," Valtin explained, "for 10 years I read nothing except the Communist press!" . . . HENRI-HAYE: Your unofficial boss, Camille Chautemps, hasn't been able to find any popularity for himself, here—especially since Vichy unfurled its Swastika. Chautemps tried to rent the elegant penthouse at a West Side hotel—the penthouse he occupied when first he arrived here—and was coldly told: "It's reserved for some one else" . . . NBC: The Navy Department has ordered 150 copies of "I Live on Air," the book written by your executive, Abe Schechter. The copies will be distributed among the fleet . . . FDR: The newly-formed Committee of Thirty Million, composed of American citizens of foreign birth, will be militant in its defense of our democracy. Via General Electric, they'll broadcast, in their native tongues, directly to the Nazi-occupied countries of their birth—including Occupied Italy.

EMILY POST: Lawrence W. Cramer, the former Governor of the Virgin Islands, visited Harold Ickes' office recently. He waited outside a long time and then repeated his name to the receptionist. The flustered girl lifted the phone and hurriedly told the Secretary of the Interior: "The Virgin of the Governors Island is waiting for you" . . . Ickes replied: "I don't believe it—but send him in" . . . LEHAND

by
ELSIE ROBINSON

ONCE UPON A TIME a great city erected a statue to Civic Virtue. And made it a Man! Forthwith the entire feminine population broke into sharp yelps of protest.

A man representing Virtue! Why, whoever thought of such a thing! Of all the idiotic and unfair notions! Didn't everyone know that Virtue was the last thing men could boast of? If anyone was to be held up as a moral example, it was Woman—Woman, who was naturally pure and superior!

Sounds silly, doesn't it, set down like that in black and white? Yet that idea is actually as firmly rooted in the average female mind today as it was 20 or 2000 years ago.

NOW I'M a female myself and as keen on placing halos on my graying waves as any of the other girls. But I simply can't subscribe to this holier-than-thou-Brother theory. It's too, too silly.

I don't believe that woman is naturally purer than man. Or more honest. Or more kind. Or more reliable. Or more refined. Or a better sport. Or in any other way, spiritually superior.

There are exceptions, to be sure; but you're as apt to find them on the male side of the ledger as on the female. It is true that women may esteem monogamy more highly than males and be tougher on any deviations toward polygamy. But marriage and motherhood are women's special racket, thanks be to a wise Creator. So naturally they are out to defend it. And, even so, many a Mama manages to fling as mean an eye as a Milwaukee salesmen.

As for the other Virtues, I believe that both sexes start at equal distances from the Pearly Throne and face a whale of a sprint before they reach it.

The Truth is, we're none of us very long on civilized attributes. The mere fact that we haven't murdered the ice man doesn't qualify us for wings.

A stingy, suspicious nature can inflict more suffering in a lifetime than a dozen machine guns.

A nagging tongue can crush more fine dreams than a gorilla with a blackjack.

ALL OF WHICH applies as directly to the Female as the Male. And if either is to claim that pedestal, they should either shoot craps for it or shut up. For it's a cinch that neither has what it takes.

But, after all, who wants a pedestal?

Why go around bragging about your respective virtues, or blasting the Other Fellows lack of them, when there's a whole world of pain and terror clamoring for space in one's heart?

So how about dropping the old feud, sisters? We're not impressing anyone with it, anyway. Whether we're He's or She's, we've just one use in this modern world. And that's To Love.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

PORTLAND, Me., Tuesday. There is one subject which is troubling me increasingly and which I feel I must talk over with you. It is perfectly natural that we should be extremely anxious now to keep foreign agents from retarding our defense industries, or from creating dissensions among us through their activities.

We must find aliens who are here illegally and, in so doing, we must question many people who are entirely innocent of any subversive activity. For that reason I feel that only the highest calibre men, employed by the legally constituted government authorities, should have anything to do with these activities.

For the rest, it seems to me if we know anything really suspicious, we have an obligation to report it to the proper government authorities. Our country, however, is made up of people, many of whom have come here recently, but who are either in process of becoming citizens, or who may be citizens already, though of foreign birth or parentage.

THEY ARE PROBABLY more devoted to the democratic form of government than many of our citizens who have taken their allegiance to democracy for granted. These people must be encouraged to trust and to love their new country and their neighbors.

I am deeply troubled by certain things that have come to me. For instance, in industries, some people, because their names are Italian or German, or because they or their parents are known to have been born in those countries, are refused employment.

We in this country, are opposing totalitarian government. We do not like Nazi or Fascist regimes. But we are not opposing the refugees who want to help us make our country, nor citizens who have come to us from other lands and who are loyal and good Americans.

This demands from us a refusal to be hysterical and an ability to use our powers of observation, but to use them wisely.

TECHNICOLOR TEST
FOR ZORINA
By Louella O. Parsons

Zorina

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—The agile, graceful Zorina flies right into Hollywood and right out again on Sunday. She comes here at the request of Buddy de Sylva to make a technicolor test for "Louisiana Purchase," the role she created on the stage.

So beautifully has Buddy worked out the schedule that the premier danseuse will only miss the Monday night performance on the New York stage. Paramount has a terrific budget for "Louisiana Purchase," which includes Bob Hope, as we have already told you, with Irving Cummings directing.

As for Victor Moore, he's so important to the stage production, and with Zorina here, Buddy says that he will not sign Moore if the show runs over the summer. If it closes then, Moore will have his own part in the film version. Zorina radiates personality and how she can dance!

MARY ASTOR

NOT SURPRISING that Warners did a Marathon to get Mary Astor's name on a contract. She was so good in "The Great Lie" that it almost seemed as if a new star were born. Bette Davis, who is very friendly with Mary, gave her a chance that few stars would give another woman—a role equal to her own.

Mary's first on the new deal is the femme lead in "Knight of Malta," based on "The Maltese Falcon," the Dashiell Hammet novel which stars George Raft. She checks in at Warners next month and later will play one of the sisters in "The Gay Sisters," but not until late in the summer, after Bette Davis has a rest.

Bette, so her closest friend says, is not expecting the stork but I will never again deny a stork rumor.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Frank Tuttles have dated the stork for November; Phyllis Brooks, back in town for the first time in months, dining at the Beverly Derby with Fred Brisson; Norma Shearer, our best comedian, goes East Monday. Wonder if Ronnie Blanton is the attraction?

Nedda Harrigan is being taken everywhere by John Koenig; Gene Tierney is finding Count Org Cassini good company; the Johnny Weissmullers came from Catalina just for the fight at Wrigley Field. The Bob Hopes, the Jack Bennys and Alice Faye and Phil Harris were others in ring-side seats; John Payne and Robert Stack flew East today in honor of Ross Dolly.

Cesar Romero goes East on a personal in Springfield, Mass., and then takes a vacation in New York. Tom Brown and Dorothy Kell have cooled after being inseparable for months; O. K. Stevens, Sam Wood's pretty daughter, and George Montgomery a Brown Derby twosome.

Betty Grable and George Raft never missing a dance at Ciro's; Bert Lahr gets here Monday to talk to M-G-M about playing the role he created in "Dubarry Was a Lady" for the movies; John Carroll and Virginia Hill, socialite, are a steady twosome these May evenings.

Edith Rogers Dahl, who was in the headlines when she was trying to get her husband out of Spain, opens at the Scheerazade soon as a violinist; Bill Jordan's Bar of Music opens Thursday and Constance Moore and Johnny Maschio, the George Jessels with Jimmie Walker as their guest of honor, are among those who have reservations.

JOSEPH VON STERNBERG, who has been spending his time on his ranch in San Fernando Valley, only coming in town now and then, has signed a contract with Arnold Pressburger to direct "Shanghai Gesture." This is the very first picture Joe has made in nearly two years and the story of Madame Goddard and Poppy is right down his alley, so to speak.

Pressburger is trying to borrow Barbara Stanwyck to play Poppy—the young girl. In the movie version Poppy is more important than the old Chinese woman, created on the stage by Florence Reed at least twenty years ago. Mrs. Leslie Carter also played Madame Goddard on the New York stage.

LOUELLA PARSONS, famed internationally-acculturated Hearst motion picture columnist, will be heard locally over station WEEI every Friday between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

THURSTON MAGIC SHOW HEADLINES NEW RKO-BOSTON STAGE PROGRAM

Radio songbird Dinah Shore and Will Rock, presenting Thurston's Wonder Magic Show with a company of 16, headline three RKO-Boston stage shows which opens a four-day engagement tomorrow. The accompanying screen attractions will be "I'll Sell My Life," featuring

Michael Whalen and Joan Woodbury, and "Red Head," with Johnny Downs and June Lang. Miss Shore, second only to radio's first lady, Kate Smith, in the air-fans' favor, is making her initial stage appearance here tomorrow. Most recently featured on the Eddie Cantor radio show, she has also been heard on the Ben Bernie program and via her popular recordings. The Thurston show includes many new illusions, notably the Great East Indian Basket Trick, "Broadcasting a Woman," "Dis-integrating a Human Form," "Boy Changed into Girl," "The Phantom Princess," "The French Cullotine" and other mysteries. Rounding out the stage show are Johnny Woods, known as the originator of radio satire, and Itana and Company, international comics.

'THAT HAMILTON WOMAN!' OPENS TOMORROW ON LOEW'S TWIN SCREENS

Vivien Leigh Has Star Role

The filming of Alexander Korda's screen romance, "That Hamilton Woman!" which opens on Loew's State and Orpheum screens tomorrow with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in the leading roles, entailed days and days of research for source material.

For instance, French engravings furnished every detail of a fashionable lady's dressing table with the exact comb, hair brushes, powder puffs and bowls, make-up equipment, costumes of maids and servants, towels, robes and even plumbing of the time had to be exactly reproduced.

All of the ships used in the battle scenes, notably those of the Battle of Trafalgar, exactly reproduced those used in the original battle.

Information on this famous encounter was furnished by the Huntington Library from the records of the British Marine Institute of the period.

Other questions arose daily during actual filming of "That Hamilton Woman!" Did they eat sausages in Naples in those days? Did they eat bananas? It was found that the meat delicacy in a casing was then unknown, as were the bananas. Compromises in costume and dress were also necessary.

Briefly, the story of "That Hamilton Woman!" concerns the spectacular career of the fascinating Lady Emma Hamilton, wife of Sir William Hamilton, who came into this world as the daughter of a blacksmith, and of her romance with Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar, one of the world's great love stories.

On the same program is another in the popular mystery series, "Elvira Queen's Penthouse Mystery," starring Ralph Bellamy and Margaret Lindsay.

LAWRENCE OLIVIER and Vivien Leigh in "That Hamilton Woman!" opening tomorrow on Loew's twin screens.

CHAPLIN FILM REVIVAL IN 3D WEEK AT FINE ARTS

The Charlie Chaplin revival program is now in its third and final belly-laughing week at the Fine Arts Theater.

Six of the comedian's two-reelers have been exhumed and reconditioned to form a feature-length program running two hours. Title cards between each tie up the six, which are "The Cure," "The Adventurer," "The Immigrant," "The Count," "The Vagabond," and "Easy Street."

All of the films were made between 1916-18 for the Lone Star Film Corp. and were distributed through the old Mutual Company. Chaplin, it is said, was earning $10,000 a week at the time, but through a bonus arrangement with Lone Star made a total of $670,000 for these and six other shorts. The films now are owned by Guaranteed Pictures, independent distributing agency, but in the past 22 years they have passed through many hands.

When Mutual went bankrupt in 1919 they were acquired by the Clark-Cornellus firm, which held them until 1922 when they were sold to a company known as Chaplin Classics.

The following year that company was dissolved and the films next were obtained in 1925 by the Esport and Import Film Co., which controlled the rights until 1932 when they were purchased by the Van Buren Co. Finally, on Feb. 14 last, Van Buren sold the films to the present distributors.

'Proud Valley' on Screen At Civic Repertory Friday

"Proud Valley," with the great American baritone, Paul Robeson, starred in this story of a Welsh mining town, will follow that excellent French picture, "Pepe Le Moko," on Civic Repertory screen, starting Friday.

Robeson plays David Goliath, the John Henry of the Welsh miners, who comes to a mining town of Blaenoy in South Wales looking for work. He is unsuccessful until he hears the men of the community singing in preparation for the annual contest and joins in. From then on, he is one of them.

All is well until Parry is killed in a mine accident. After this, the mines close, and the people are desperate. Finally Parry's son, Emlyn, and four others decide to march to London to plead for the mine's reopening.

The men receive permission to attempt the dangerous opening of the sealed pit. They are successful but only at the cost of three lives, including David's. Now there is work again and the town continues its accustomed routine.

In the course of the picture, Robeson sings five songs, "Deep River," "All Through the Night," "Land of My Fathers," "Ebeneser" and "Ton-Y-Botel."

Heading the supporting cast are Janet Johnson, Simon Lack, Rachel Thomas, Edward Chapman, Edward Rigby, Charles Williams and Clifford Evans.

New Double Program For Beacon Screen

Beacon's new screen bill, starting tomorrow, will team "Maizie Was a Lady," starring Ann Sothern in the title role with Low Ayres, and "Keeping Company," a John Shelton-Ann Rutherford co-starrer.

24 Voice in the Night' Is Harsh Film Story of Nazis in Revolt

By PEGGY DOYLE

monstrously incredible as the plained arrival of the swas-Hess on a Scottish farm the ing on Trans-Lux screen.

e picture is the British-made "Voice in the Night," and purports e a fairly accurate account of t is going in underground Gery on the part of patriots who risking death so that their ened fellow-countrymen may bw the truth about their hate-red tyrants.
s said to be based on the old-famous Freedom Radio, veh nightly defied the all-power-ft Nazi party to tell the truth ut the mad men who were turn-good German citizens into huan zombies.
n the film, Clive Brook, looking handsome as when he was one of America's favorite screen heroes, is cast as the doubting Nazi, who might have been the third man in the Reich set-up. Tortured by his discovery of the venality of the Nazi system, he determines to get the truth to the people and in the same way that Der Fuehrer gets over his soul-destroying pronouncements.

His decision alienates him from the one he loves most, his beautiful actress-wife, whom Diana Wynward makes a lovely, believable woman. Completely loyal to the Nazi policies and only recently appointed its drama director, she comes close to exposing him as the defiant voice in the night.
Just in time she, too, comes to learn the depravity and deception that motivates the men to whom she has given her faith.
"Great Guy," a second-run James
Cagney starer, is the co-feature.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

THE WORCESTER department of vital statistics should disclose the news that Lynne Sherman, the Boston singer, has become Mrs. Milton Ebbins, and through the marriage, a New Yorker . . . We hear that the ceremony took place the past Friday night . . . Miss Sherman sang with Jack Marshard's band and held a sustaining spot on WBZ . . . The bridegroom is an executive with the William Morris theatrical agency and is responsible for the fortunes of Count Basie's band.

FROM MIDNIGHT until 2 a. m. today, a galaxy of song and dance men and girls went to town for the sheer joy of entertaining—and to tribute to young Archie Robbins, the comedian . . . The Mayfair was the scene of the party, and Mr. Robbins was given a trunk as a gift . . . The affair took shape somewhat as a preview for another array of hooping and cooing, the "100th Guest Night" jamboree scheduled for tomorrow night at the Coconut Grove.

DOROTHY AND PAUL STONE and Charlie Collins (Dorothy's husband), were the hits of the evening . . . Although the Collinses are annual features of The Mayfair's musicals, the character of the profession is expected to vouchsafe their appearance at the Grove's jubilee . . . For this "100th Guest Night" is in the nature of a personal tribute to Mickey Alpert, a popular lad with all his fellows of show-business.

THE WEEK'S EVENT which will probably hold the most social sparkle is the Aviation Ball for the benefit of the New England Flying Cadet Committee at the Somerset Friday night . . . Major Willis Fitch, the author and bridge expert, is general chairman of the committee, and the unofficial Major Fitch, who has made a career of quietly trying to achieve some form of communal good at every possible opportunity (without having his name mentioned) has really worked on this one.

PART OF THE BUILDUP for the Aviation Ball was the designation by Gov. Saltonstall of this week as "Flying Cadet Week" . . . It is all part of the general recruiting drive for the air corps . . . Heads of both the Army and Navy air corps will be present at the ball, and other generals and admirals and their staffs in full dress uniform will make the dance a real spectacle.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: This column is only speaking the obvious when it mentions the tremendous relief all the newspaper workers in town felt when the safety of George Ryan's boy—as well as all those other kids—seemed assured after the scare attached to the mystery of the S. S. Zamzam . . . Jimmy Dorsey's visit to the Totem Pole tonight should see the records go crashing . . . Along with the increase in teen-asking reported on many fronts, the ballrooms are reporting their share . . . But the youngsters have never been too keen for the conca-rumba styles in dancing. (They think by their own dances).

ANOTHER HAND BACK in town for a series of one-nights in this territory is Johnny Long's . . . Johnny, a left handed violinist, got his first important Eastern engagement at the Copley-Plaza three years ago . . . (He's the only member of the left-handed fiddling species currently fronting a band) . . . In "high" music the concert season . . . M. Kolisch is the only prominent southpaw violinist in classical circles . . .

THE LONG ARTISTRY is not based on his ability to go "out of the world" . . . Johnny is not a "hot" left-handed violinist . . . His band is essentially a "sweet" band, and due to this column's prediction for music of this type, we thought it might possibly encourage another leader or two to mute the brass, and try the sweet and melodic stuff of sweet music . . . Back to "sweet" is the trend, anyway . . . (Four years after we began to plead for success from the "sax" mania—which is very ineffective campaigning, we must admit).

AUTHORS aren't required to be good at arithmetic, but a mass interview between a New York drama critic and the team of Howard Lindsay and Russell (Buck) Crouse leaves us truly baffled . . . Lindsay and Crouse are the new wizards of show-business . . . The promise they showed in their first effort, "Anything Goes" (which ran exactly a year on Broadway after opening here in the Colonial) has been borne out by their writing and production of the classic "Life With Father," and their production and staging of the great comedy, "Arsenic and Old Lace."

CORNERED BY THE N. Y. drama critic, the team of Lindsay and Crouse—speaking in concert—is quoted—as follows: "On the financial side, the 21 backers of 'Arsenic and Old Lace' will get back about 20 dollars for every one invested . . . This won't, of course, compare with the return the backers are getting from 'Life With Father'."

"HOWARD CULMAN HAS gotten back over $100,000 for his $5000 investment in 'Life With Father' . . . He won't get that percentage for his bit of 'Arsenic' and we will probably have to think up a good alibi for that." . . . It appeals to this corner, which is not very good at arithmetic itself, that as good an "alibi" as any is that if the backers of "Arsenic and Old Lace" get back "20 dollars for every one invested," that might well be compared with a return of $100,000 for $5000.

"ARSENIC AND OLD LACE" incidentally is unlikely to play Boston before next fall . . . There was talk of forming a Boston company, as was done in the case of "Life With Father," but the plan seems to have been dropped for the spring and summer.

A Confirmed Bachelor

Southern Cruise

By Alma and Paul Ellerbe

WHEN Mavis and Pelham Griscomb moved to Pleasant Hill, Pelham gave his wife a talking to. "You're going to have to watch yourself out here, you know. Suburbia is not New York City. People let you alone in the city—come when you want them to and stay away when you don't. But any place no bigger than Pleasant Hill is bound to be a little like a big family. You are likely to be absorbed if you don't watch your step."

Mavis promised that she would. She always promised Pelham anything he wanted her to.

She terribly wanted to make him happy. She always thought she was going to want what he wanted. And most of the time she did. The trouble was that she wanted a vast number of other things besides.

She wanted, indeed, pretty nearly everything pleasant, all at once. She was very young, as pretty as they come, eager, intelligent, avid of life, and what Pelham called "the yellow dog type"—by which he meant that her spirit went out to meet practically everybody.

She was a city girl. She had never known a small place before.

It was Mavis who led the way, and she put down the right foot with a good deal of ease—at first. But the days are long if you don't work for a living—and Mavis didn't have to—there are only a certain number of books and magazines that you want to read if you are young and healthy and full of stings, the house was perfectly equipped. Mavis brought with her well trained servants and after she had done her full housekeeper's duty there was a great deal of time and creative vitality left.

Pleasant Hill flowed in upon the Griscombs. Flowed, perhaps, is the wrong word; seeped would be more nearly correct. The process was so gradual that they were inundated, swamped, bogged down, absorbed and waterlogged with humanity before they realized it. Humanity at its nicest, and they liked everything about this condition of inundation except its excessiveness.

TOO MANY FRIENDS
"We've got enough human contacts," Pelham said after they had been in Pleasant Hill a couple of years, "to furnish out a dozen families like ours. Everything's perfectly well except that our own little private life—the Pelham-andthing in the world," Mavis said. "And always will be. You know that, darling, don't you? Nothing's happened to make you doubt it, has it? Nothing could, could it? We haven't lost anything, have we?"

"No," he said, "not a smidgin. We've got it all, but it's in the ice-box. Every time we want to do something together, the doorbell rings and it's Fannie and Ben wanting to play tennis, or Art and Bee come in for bridge, or some of the theater gang to carry you off. How long has it been since we had a Sunday or an evening or an afternoon alone?"

"Oh, darling," she said, "it's true! I didn't realize it, but it's true! And it's awful. What are we going to do about it?"

"We are taking a trip," he said.

The day came, cold, bleak, buried in a peaspow fog. They shivered in the heated taxi on their way to the boat. They had allowed plenty of time, but the fog got thicker and thicker, and they ended by feeling their way up to the dock with only a few seconds to spare, and got themselves onto the boat in a mad scramble.

Nothing could have been better preparing for what followed. The fog stopped short at Sandy Hook. Blue weather lay beyond—another world.

"It's an omen," Mavis said, sinking into a deck chair beside Pelham in another one. "Let's work together, shall we, to make all the hours of this golden interlude like this one! It's perfectly wonderful that we can have this, Pel! I'm so grateful, darling!"

She laid her hand over her husband's big, capable one where it "Is that Fanny's back, do you think?"

on. And the more I thought about it the more I wondered if it wouldn't put the notion in Fannie's head to pick up Ben and come along.

"And then I said to myself, Oh, they'd never be able to make all their arrangements and do such a thing in so short a time, and I got to feeling safe about it. But now—Do you suppose, honey, that you'll ever really learn anything about this sort of thing? Three weeks with Ben and Fannie! And he closed his eyes.

When he opened them Mavis' were a little wet, and she was biting her lips while she stared unseeing at the disappearing backs of the two people that she knew damned well might be Fannie and Ben. If they weren't, Ben and Fannie were somewhere else on board—she felt sure of it now.

She had tried to kid herself, but deep down in her heart she realized that what she had said, first to Fannie and then to Ben—not meaning it to have that effect at all—just meaning to be friendly and affectionate and cordial—could have had—darn it! must have had—all the force of an indirect invitation. Ben and Fannie were just the sort to have thought it would be lovely to surprise her and Pelham.

"HOW WONDERFUL"

"I've learned my lesson now," she said in a choked voice,—"now that it's—it's too late. Oh, I—I'm so sorry, Pel, and—and so miserable."

But he didn't relent. He sat there and looked straight ahead at a trimly painted life boat. And when he spoke, at last, it was to chance the subject.

"Smart looking life boat," he said in a conversational tone. "I wonder how many people it will hold."

"Pel," she began, "please—" but he interrupted her.

"Aren't you interested in that life boat?" he asked. "What in the Sam Hill look at it. There's something very important to you about that life boat. Have you noticed what's painted on it?"

She hadn't, but she did. She sat up and gasped.

"S. S. Montevideo!" she said. "We—we're not on the Conquistador? And—and Fannie and Ben—"

"Ah," he said, with a grin like the sunrise. "I called up the steamship company and found out they had booked passage. They'll have exactly what they need—three weeks to talk things out—together, And—"

"Ah—so shall we!" she breathed.

"Oh, darling, how wonderful!"

30 Jack Conway MAY REVIVE HORSE RACING IN WESTERN PART OF STATE

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., MAY 21, 1930

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that 30-year-old Edward J. Carroll has purchased the Barrington Fair Grounds at Great Barrington indicates that the Western part of the State is to have thoroughbred horse racing. The section of the State where the Barrington Fair Grounds are located voted for mutual betting.

EDWARD J. CARROLL

Boston track has 60 days of racing which leaves 30 open days that could be given to the Barrington Fair Grounds.

There are plenty of the type of horses that would fill the races at Great Barrington. A Summer meeting would be successful with racing having a boom in all parts of the country.

Edward J. Carroll has been operating an amusement park in Agawam for two years. A native of South Boston, Carroll entered the amusement field following his graduation from law school, and has been active in promotions in the vicinity of Springfield. Carroll makes his home in Agawam.

Jack McGrath Discovered Champions

JACK McGRATH, who died in Worcester the other day, was one of the best judges of the possibilities of young athletes. He could see in the raw, unschooled boy trying to excel in sports a future champion.

McGrath's specialties were wrestling and boxing. He looked into all of the countries of the world for talent. His two greatest wrestling discoveries were Danno O'Mahony and Steve Casey, both of whom became world's heavyweight wrestling champions.

He was among the first to proclaim Joe Louis as the coming boxing champion as he didn't think much of it in heavy weight opposition.

McGrath also brought Hubert Valentine, Irish tenor, to the United States, and at the time of his death had the singer signed to several radio contracts.

When Martin Bisco, Jewish member of the Irish Parliament, came to the United States he did so under the management of McGrath.

The signing of O'Mahony by McGrath gives an idea of his genius in spotting new talent. McGrath had gone to Ireland in quest of an Irish heavyweight boxer or wrestler. He was prepared to offer Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, Ireland's Olympic champion at weight throwing, a guarantee of $125,000 for five years as a wrestler in addition to a percentage privilege.

McGrath found Dr. O'Callaghan in the midst of numerous sports promotions as well as a man active in his own profession. Dr. O'Callaghan wanted more than $125,000 to come to America.

While the negotiations were still in progress, Dr. O'Callaghan competed in a track meet in Dublin, and McGrath attended the affair.

Competing against Dr. O'Callaghan in a weight throwing contest was a young Irish Free State soldier by the name of Daniel J. O'Mahony. Much to the surprise of everyone, O'Mahony defeated Dr. O'Callaghan.

McGrath rushed to O'Mahony's dressing room, and asked him if he had ever boxed or wrestled. O'Mahony replied he had done some of both while in the army. Jack then signed O'Mahony for an American tour as a boxer or as a wrestler provided the young Irishman could gain his release from the Army.

Dempsey Wanted to Make Danno a Fighter

McGRATH STARTED Danno wrestling in Boston. Jack Dempsey saw O'Mahony in one of his early bouts, and offered $20,000 for his contract. The old Manassa Mauler thought Danno could have been developed into a heavyweight boxer.

I saw Danno lose punches in a wrestling bout against Strangler Lewis in the Garden one night. The Irishman opened a big wound over Lewis' left eye, cut the Strangler's cheek with a punch and drove one of Lewis' teeth through his lower lip. This was not exactly complying with the rules of wrestling, but at the time Danno was a big drawing card at the gate and nobody concerned themselves with whether or not he broke a few rules.

If O'Mahony had been schooled in boxing by Dempsey he would have been a heavyweight threat, as he could hit and he lacked fear. These are the two principal assets for any heavyweight.

O'Mahony became world's heavyweight champion by defeating Jim London and Ed Don George in Boston.

Later McGrath brought Steve Casey, now a private at Fort Constitution, to the United States. Casey was not as colorful as Danno, but he possessed much power and wrestling ability and later became a champion. At Fort Constitution Casey now amuses himself taking on as many as half a dozen soldiers in wrestling bouts, one after the other. Steve has won all of his matches inside of five minutes. The big Irishman has done much to get the soldiers into condition and also to maintain the morale of the camp.

McGrath as a wrestler was known as the "Irish Giant." He later entered the boxing game. His career as a boxer was halted by the World War. He enlisted in the Navy, and was named a physical director.

When McGrath was buried in Worcester, the entire city turned out as a final tribute. They knew and respected Jack as a friend, and took pride in his numerous athletic successes.

It's Now Up to Sox Bosses To Keep Johnson on Top

By JOE CASHMAN

At long last the Red Sox have a great pitcher.

We shouldn't have to explain that we refer to the elongated blond southpaw who answers to the name of Earl Johnson.

The 22-year-old portlander, who came to the main tent from Seattle, via St. Mary's College in California and the Sox farm at Rocky Mount, has been the standout Hose hurler since he joined the varsity less than a year ago.

He finished up the '40 campaign with a 6-2 record and he won three of his first four starts this Spring. But he wasn't a great major leaguer in any of these tills. He was simply a brilliant prospect.

Inexperience stuck out all over him and he showed a tendency towards wildness, which could be ignored to ignorance as to how to pace himself.

You suspected, though, that sooner or later he'd remedy his weaknesses and that, when he did, he'd be next to invincible.

NEXT TO INVINCIBLE

And yesterday he confirmed those suspicions as he unveiled a four-hit masterpiece against the champion Detroit Tigers to shatter the Sox five-game losing streak.

For the first time in his brief career he performed like a seasoned veteran. For the first time he had his control from the start to finish of a game. For the first time he had his stuff all the way. And he was truly next to invincible.

He was a polished big league ace out there; a potential 20-game winner.

In short, he had arrived. Now it is up to the Sox masterminds to keep him that way.

The Hose have had several other brilliant rookie pitching prospects in recent years. None of them ever came up to expectations.

Maybe it was the kids' fault, as the Fenway strategists insisted. Maybe it was the Fenway strategists' fault, as the tyros alleged.

IT'S NOW UP TO SOX BOSSES

We're not taking sides in that argument.

But we are saying that if Johnson doesn't go on from here to become one of the mightiest portlanders in the business, the Sox bosses must accept all the blame for his failure.

They could alibi for his infrequent poor showings in the past. They could point to his inexperience.

No longer, however.

Though he never pitched a pro game until he reported at Rocky Mount last spring, he now possesses more pitching poise and savvy than the average finger acquirer in his first two or three years in the majors.

A pitcher that's phenomenal can't misfire he's handled properly. The highlight of Lefty Earl's performance against the Tigers came in the sixth inning.

Earl Johnson, Red Sox—Stopped Tiger's winning streak with four-hit pitching.

Arky Vaughn, Pirates—Hit two-run homer in seventh to sew up victory over Giants.

Bill Dickery, Yankees—Led attack on Browns with three hits, including three-run homer.

Frank McCormick, Reds—His home run with two on and two out in ninth beat Braves.

Thornton Lee, White Sox—Beat Senators with six-hit hurling.

Tom Ferrick, Athletics—Pitched two fine innings in relief to save victory over Indians.

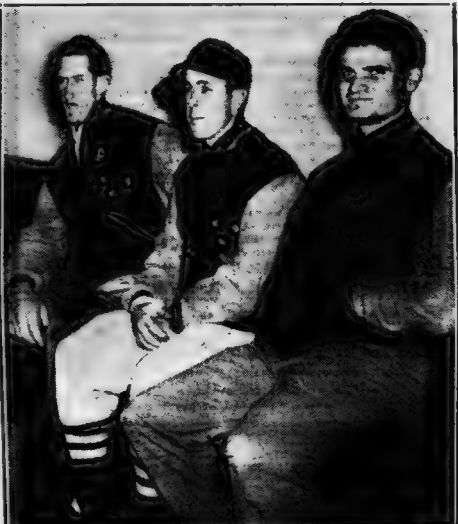

Harry Marine, Phillies—Singed home winning run in 11th against Cardinals.

Bill Lee and Lou Stringer, Cubs—Former was tight with men on bases and latter hit triple with bases loaded in victory over Dodgers.

ONLY SWEEP OF BUGGS SERIES CAN SAVE BRAVES' ROAD TRIP

PITTSBURGH, May 21—Making this the last stop on the first Western jaunt, the Braves need to sweep this two-game series against the greatly improved Pirates to have this initial trip around the circuit anywhere near successful.

Going into today's game, the Tribe has won only two games against five losses against their western foes.

Looking at the western trip alone, this swing could have been successful. Going into yesterday's game, the Braves had won two western games.

'Ain't Got a Dime'

Conn Needs Purse Badly

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 21 (AP)—Billy Conn, shooting for the moon when he meets Joe Louis in June for the heavyweight title, may bag the biggest purse of his career next Monday night in a home town tuneup fight against Buddy Knox, a relatively unknown plodder from Dayton, O.

"And boy, do we need that sugar," moans Johnny Ray, Billy's manager. "We ain't got a dime." The cost of living up to the light heavyweight title along with family expenses—Billy provides the best medical care for his ill mother—has drained the Conn exchequer.

$20,000 FROM BETTINA BOUT
"It costs Billy $1000 a month to live," explained Ray, "and you know me, pal, money was made to spend."

Billy's biggest purse to date was something over $20,000 he received in another home town stand—his successful defense of his light heavyweight title against Mello Bettina.

Other Conn purses include $15,000 for his fight with Bob Pastor, $14,000 in the Lee Savold fight, $10,000 for the Gunnar Barland date and $12,000 for his return match with Fred Apostoli.

$20,000 ADVANCE SALE
"We'll top $25,000 for our end against Knox," Ray asserted. "The way tickets are going we may even hit $30,000."

The Dapper Dan Club, charitable organization acting as co-promoters of the 15-round Conn-Knox fight, agrees with Ray's expectations of a record purse. Officers say the advance sale already is near $20,000 and that with a warm night they may sell out Forbes Field with a crowd in excess of 40,000.

"Billy's going to chill that guy," Ray proclaimed. "We're too near to the heavyweight title to stumble."

Cocozza Worthy Foe For State Champ Daley

Former State Champion Johnny Daley of Newton will have a stiff test on his hands tomorrow night when he tries to romp to welterweight honors in the All-Star Boxing show staged by the Lions Club in the Somerville high school gym. Mike Cocozza, Haverhill, promises to give the former title-holder a going over as do Al Brien, Lawrence; Larry Eyrjo, South End, and Tony Ped, Chelsea.

Competition will be in the 126, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes. Entries may be filed with Fred Russo, 8 Curtis st., Somerville.

PERCENTAGES RULE BASEBALL STREAKS

By the Associated Press

Percentages control everything in baseball.

You see them in the standings of the clubs, in the batting and fielding averages and in other statistics. You don't see them, but they are present when a left-handed pinch-hitter is sent in against a right-handed pitcher, or a batter is walked to set up a double play, or the infield comes in close to play for a sacrifice, or the outfield moves around in position for a dead-left field hitter. "Percentage" is the reason behind every move in the game—even to the batters who never strike at a 3-0 pitch.

This "law of averages" also is the key to the present tailspins of the Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Before the Indians lost their three straight to the seventh-place Philadelphia Athletics they had won 23 games and lost nine for a .714 percentage. Before the Dodgers dropped four in a row at Pittsburgh and Chicago they had won 22 and lost six for a sensational .786.

ONLY SEVEN IN 40 YEARS

These simply were speeds too fast for either club to maintain, just as the same reasoning applies to the St. Louis Cardinals, who were breezing along at a .714 clip till they were bumped yesterday by the last-place Phillies.

In the past 40 years in the major leagues only seven championships have been won with percentages above .700.

In the course of bringing the Dodgers down to earth, the Cubs made 33 hits and 30 runs in three contests. They bagged yesterday's finale, 9-1, bunting six hits for three runs in the fourth against Kirby Higbe and nicking Newt Kimball in the eighth for six runs, three of them on Lou Stringer's triple with the bases loaded.

The Cardinals, cut down, 6-4, in 11 innings by the Phils, remained a half-game behind the Dodgers in won-lost figuring although holding onto the official percentage lead.

Arky Vaughan settled a see-saw game between the New York Giants and Pittsburgh in favor of the Pirates, 7-5, with a two-run homer in the seventh.

YANKS GET GIFT

The Athletics ambushed Mel Harder, undefeated previously with four victories, and whipped the Indians, 6-5. Rookie Tom Ferlic, third relief pitcher for Philadelphia, worked two innings in which he did not let a man reach first. There were eight double plays.

The second-place Chicago White Sox polished off a sweep of their three-game series at Washington with Lefty Thornton, Lee holding the Senators to six hits for a 5-3 victory.

The St. Louis Browns handed the Yankees a 10-9 decision on a platter garnished with no less than six errors.

Harland Clift hit two home runs and Roy Cullenbine one, but Brownie misplays undermined Elden Auker before Bill Dickey hit a three-run homer in the eighth. Relief Pitcher George Caster threw badly to first to let in the winning run with two out in the ninth.

Hub Fans to Travel To Springfield to Fete Maranville

Boston baseball fans, old and young, are planning a gala day on Sunday, June 1, when they travel to Springfield en masse to honor Rabbit Maranville manager of the Springfield club of the Eastern League and old time Braves shortstop.

A special train will leave the South Station at 10:30 that morning and headquarters for the day will be made at Hotel Highland, Springfield.

The group, under the direction of Ray Grady, 40 Broad st., will present Maranville with a gift to highlight the day and will root for his team in its double-header with Williamsport.

Maranville was born in Springfield and played there until he joined the New Bedford club of the old New England League. After a year with the Whalers, he joined the Braves in the fall of 1911 and was shortstop on their world championship club of 1914.

TWIN KILLING—First out on first inning double play at Yankee Stadium. Red Rolfe of the Yanks out at second, forced on Henrich's grounder to Heffner. Lucadello, shortstop, covers sack for Browns, and throws to first in time to catch Henrich. Yanks won, 10-9. Day before they had been beaten and held to four hits by Denny Galehouse, formerly of the Red Sox.

Jim Neary, Braves' Trainer for 33 Years, Suffers Stroke

Jim Neary, who for 33 years has been trainer of the Braves, is in a serious condition at Somerville Hospital where he was taken yesterday after suffering a stroke. Neary, who is 74 years old, has been from Charlestown and for the past year he has practically been on the retired list at Braves Field.

Dick Bartel Sought As Manager on Coast

(By the Special AP News Service)

If Pacific Coast sports writers have their way, Dick Bartel will be offered the first managerial job to open up out there.

Ray Arcel, one of the best two trainers of fighters in New York, will have charge of Warren Wilson, Clemson's hard-hitting Southern Conference heavyweight champion, when he invades the pro ranks this summer.

Frank Kovacs is telling pals he's going to join the Army as soon as he wins the National singles championship.

Good News: The plants voluntarily tore up the contracts of Bill Jurgens, Gabby Hartnett and Ace Adams and gave them new ones calling for nice raises. Bad News: Henry Armstrong starts that comeback in July.

Opening prices have Louis 13 over Conn (shorted price on Joe since the second Schmeling fight). Ben Hogan is 5 to 1 to win the Goodall round robin, starting tomorrow. No quotations yet on the National Open.

Zeke Bonura's .439 hitting is helping Minneapolis burn up the American Ass'n. Zeke is 20 pounds lighter and is the No. 1 guy in Milltown.

Milton Berle, the stage and screen comic, headed one of the Hollywood syndicates (not Bing Crosby's) which tried to buy the Boston Braves.

Washington papers are blasting the District boxing commissioners for not letting a local guy referee the Joe Louis-Buick fight Friday night. Arthur Donovan may be imported from New York.

Montana State's 1940 football squad has sent nine men to the National Guard, eight to Reserve Officers' Corps, three to the Army and two to the Air Corps.

Also Simon's magazine piece says no Jewish fighter ever won the heavyweight crown. What was Max Baer's trick?

Lynn C. Doyle, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: There are 100 winners in Philadelphia every 97 men. Then where do the local boxing writers get off with their essays about the shortage of sparring partners?

John Novak, Francis Rosso and Al Chappuis, pitchers for the American International College at Springfield, Mass., have limited the opposition to one run in 82 Innings this season.

Marty Servo, who wears Lou Ambers' old shoes for the Al Well fight stable, is doing a pretty fair country job of filling 'em—11 wins, two draws in 43 pro fights.

Cleveland scribes are passing out orchids to Gre Walker, who is sparking the Tribe in the last pace it's setting. If you know of a "name" football team which has an open date on November 8, refer it to Coach Henry Fynka of Tulsa U. He'll oblige.

41-Run Marathon
 HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 21 (AP)—The Texarkana and Hot Springs teams of the Cotton States League played a 41-run game last night in only nine innings.

Texarkana finally won, 26 to 15. Each team pounded 22 hits. Hot Springs' six errors, against three for Texarkana, contributed to defeat. Hot Springs folded up in the last two innings. The Texarkana slammed 10 runs across, five each frame.

Tufts Hurdling Star In Cambridge Meet

Ed Dugger, Tufts star hurdler will be one of the outstanding performers in the New England intercollegiate track and field meet to be held Friday and Saturday at Briggs Field in Cambridge.

He should have no trouble in winning both the 120 high and the 220 low hurdle events, but he will be closely pressed by several other local athletes.

Walter Hall, also of Tufts, placed second in the 120 high hurdles in the 1940 meet. His best time for the season is 13s in the high and 24.3 in the low. Lewis Jester of M. I. T. made an excellent showing at Brown last week when he won the high hurdles in 15.1s and the low hurdles in 24.2s.

George Gilson of Holy Cross with 15s in the high sticks and 24.2s in the low sticks, has established the best time to date this year. The Boston College hurdler, John McNeil, will also be a threat. His time this year has been 15s in the high and 24.9 in the low.

Holy Cross and Boston College will be the major contenders for the 440 and 880 yard hurdles. Bill Dowd of B. C. is anxious, not only to defend his 1940 laurels, but also to avenge his defeat at the hands of Bud Hines, the sensational Holy Cross sophomore who defeated both Dowd and Charlie O'Donnell of Holy Cross, the former quarter-mile intercollegiate champion, in a dual meet last week.

Dave Nickerson of Bates, Homer Hamlin of New Hampshire and John Nickerson of Bowdoin are all capable of placing in the mile, although it seems likely that Nickerson will confine his efforts to the half-mile.

Cards Option Out Two Star 'Rook' Hurlers

ST. LOUIS, May 21 (AP)—Cutting down their normal staff of nine pitchers, the Cardinals today optioned two of their star rookies, sending Henry Gornicki to Rochester of the International League and John Grodzicki to Columbus of the American Ass'n.

The Cardinals found that with 11 pitchers they couldn't give all of them enough work to keep them in shape.

Gornicki pitched a one-hit shut-out against Philadelphia in his only start of the season May 3 and he

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—E. K. Bryson, C. Marion and John A. Bell, Jr., Dark Discovery, a pair of speedy fillies which finished only heads apart in the Pimlico Oaks, resume their rivalry at Belmont today in the $3500 Acorn Stakes.

They had a field of 13 fillies in the mile test and are expected to be co-favorites at post time. Although the race, hosted from a $3500 affair to $3500 this year, generally is regarded as a trial for the Coaching Club American Oaks, to be run May 31, only three of today's entries also are eligible for the more famous race. They are Dark Discovery, Nasca and Sister Union.

Lonely Topee Waits in Vain

By HORACE WADE

Topee's head is extended over his stable webbing today, waiting for Waldo Freeman to come along with his customary orange.

His wait will be in vain. Waldo won't be there today—or tomorrow . . . or ever again.

The popular Texas horseman, considered well on the road to recovery after a week's illness, suffered a sudden relapse on Monday night, passing away several minutes later in the arms of his wife.

It's hard to write of a friend who has passed away. But I believe Waldo would like this story to be written. It will be the final page in a racing scrap book he kept for so many years, tracing away back to his boyhood days when he sold home made pies and tarts around the stables at the old City Park race track in New Orleans.

The scenes shift steadily, carrying him on through afternoons of heartbreak and of ecstasy; through page after page of famous thoroughbreds of the past, traced either by himself or by his father and mother; on to a 1924 Derby Day at Churchill Downs when Black Gold came racing through the stretch into the winner's ring and everlasting glory.

Waldo was business agent then for the stable of Mrs. R. M. Hoots, owner of Black Gold, although there were many who hinted he was the actual trainer of the ebullient son of Black Toney and mainly responsible for the career that finally carried him into exclusive Derby company.

Waldo came to New England a year ago for the first time, bringing with him his charming bride, Patricia, and memories of three fine children at school. His first wife had passed away some years previously, and Waldo had been both father and mother to Wanda, Richard and Donnie, seeing them over the rough spots of small childhood and into carefree school days.

At Rockingham Park he met Dr. and Mrs. Harold Titus of Lowell, and the couples became inseparable. So when the Massachusetts physician decided to race a stable of thoroughbreds he commissioned Waldo to select several horses to carry the blue and white silks of the Tallyho Stable. The Freeman judgement was uncanny. He snared Topee for $1600, and watched him develop into top handicap timber. He took Meritorious for $2000, a consistent winner. Blacky Bee, Volice 2nd, Pete Gene and others soon graced the Tallyho barn, and within the space of a few months the stable had entirely won itself out.

Topee was naturally the pet of the stable. He was not only gifted with extreme speed, but also with a rare judgment of oranges. He chews the sun-ripened delicacies with thorough enjoyment, then ejects the seeds one by one through his teeth with all the marksmanship of a veteran tobacco "chawer."

Waldo babled all of his horses, however, and not a single thoroughbred in his stable is had tempered or mean. A diet of sugar and continuous kindness, he found will transform the wildest thoroughbred into a meek lamb. That was Waldo's success with horses—and with his associates at the track. That is why there is an ache, today, in the heart of Suffolk Downs.

A year ago Mrs. Freeman raced several horses in her own right at Suffolk Downs, sending them out in blue and white silks once carried by Black Gold. Waldo had faithfully preserved the colors over the years, and it brought a nostalgic yearning for the old days to veterans watching the rose and white in action once again; memories of a flashy black coat soaring out of the rack to race down a Derby field and drag away to victory.

Waldo has joined Black Gold in that Valhalla where all thoroughbreds—human and equine—some day go. There will be no tears. Waldo will be well again. Black Gold's broken leg will be mended. There will be other famous horses grazing in the bluegrass. Dominic, Henry of Navarre, Hindoo, Collis—other horsemen to talk things over with, and Waldo's word will be respected for he was not only one of them, but one of the best of them.

It is just those who knew him so well—those he left behind—who are saddened today.

And so Topee continues to look along the stable corridor, awaiting the patter of feet that will not come . . . a friendly word he will not hear . . . a lampling, golden orange that would probably lose its sweetness, presented by any but The Boss.

Words are such futile things when time comes to say good-bye.

Princeton Crew Shows On Charles

The outstanding sprint crew race of the season will take place on the lower Charles Saturday afternoon with the announcement today that Princeton was an added entry to the race which will be a battle between Cornell, Harvard, and Syracuse.

Harvard, the only undefeated eight in the East, will enter the quad race a distinct favorite. Tom Bolles, the taciturn and capable Cantab coach, has been priming his armada to reap revenge on the giant host of Ithacans who have made the only smudge on the Harvard escutcheon for the past two years.

Riding high in the wake of a record smashing win over Navy, in which a new regatta and course record were established under miserable conditions, the Harvard coach will string along with soph Darcy Curwen of Exeter, N. H. as the pace setter for his first galley of oarsmen.

The Tigers were invited to enter the regatta because they have made an excellent showing this year (a defeat at the hands of Harvard is their only setback) and because their race with Yale and Cornell was postponed when Lake Cayuga became a miniature ocean last Saturday.

Coach Sanford of the Big Red will be after his first win of the season before the attention is focused on the Poughkeepsie banner event of the rowing season. The Cornellians have been handicapped by a slow start and illness to key men for the early part of the season and are only just rounding into top form.

Syracuse is a dark horse entry. They have come from behind twice to defeat Yale and M. I. T. by scant margins.

LOUIS HARD ON TRAINING PARTNERS IN FINAL WORKOUT

WASHINGTON, May 21 (INS)—Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis and Challenger Buddy Baer today finish training for their title fight Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

Baer predicts he will win by a knockout, while the Brown Bombardier's only comment was "Buddy's a good boxer." Louis, down to 202 pounds, the weight at which he expects to enter the ring, yesterday began cutting loose on his sparring partners. He knocked out Larry Boudard, of Montreal, in the first round of their workout with a right cross, and drove sharp rights to the head of Joe Corliss.

FAVOR ANGEL IN SEASON'S MAT FINAL

The Angel rules a slight favorite to defend his mat crown tonight when he clashes with Wladyslaw Talun, 6 ft. 8 in., 302 pound Polish giant, at the Arena. The show is the season's finale in Boston.

Though the Angel is the favorite it is only by a whisker. He has been very successful since he lifted the crown from the brow of Steve Casey, but he has never quite stacked up against the opposition he faces tonight.

The Angel knows this, but still thinks he will be the winner.

The experts are conceding a slight edge to the man with the big head in the matter of strength, but his physical advantages reach a sudden halt there for the Pole is a foot taller and about 25 pounds heavier along with being twice as fast as the champ.

In the semi-final, Steve Casey, former world's champion, and now a private in Uncle Sam's army, meets George Macriostas, occasional Greek. Private Steve, as usual, will have the vocal support of many of his buddies stationed at Fort Constitution, Portsmouth, N. H.

MAIN ROUT
Wladyslaw Talun, Poland, vs. The Angel, France.

SEMI-FINAL
Priv. Steve Casey, U. S. Army, vs. George Macriostas, Greece.

PRELIMINARIES
Ben Morgan, Texas, vs. Leo Numa, Seattle.

Pete Ballran, Lithuania, vs. Martin Wrenberg, Tacoma.

Alm Kishley, Syria, vs. Lord Albert Mills, England.

Ben Wilmot, Dorchester, vs. Cowboy Gray, Wyoming.

SEEING DOUBLE—Over the water jump at Belmont. Invader (8) leads the eventual winner London Town (2) over the water jump during the Charles L. Appleton steeplechase at Belmont Park. The flying steeds and their riders are reflected in the water below as they soar over the barrier. Invader fell later in the race to let London Town race on to victory.

EIGHT THIRTY LONE DANGER AS WHIRLAWAY TAKES RACE

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—The hilarious story back of the $50,000 race that Belmont Park got for $2500 was told today after Whirlaway had won the "preview" of what might well be a good-sized piece of the year's racing championship.

After his easy decision yesterday over Charley Howard's scribe, the only horse still standing in whacky Whirlaway's way this year appeared to be George D. Widener's Eight Thirty. The chances are the two won't tangle until the Pimlico Special in November, for Whirlaway will spend the next couple of months basking at his own three-year-old league, probably starting again Friday in the $7500 added Peter Pan Handicap at Belmont unless something happens to him before then.

WON IN A BREEZE

But behind yesterday's race itself were (1) the frantic efforts of at least two trainers to scratch their horses, because they hadn't realized what they were running into, and (2) the lucky break for Belmont when a $2500 overnight allowance affair popped up with a field that would have done credit to any $50,000 stake.

As for the race itself, Warren Wright's Lightning streak just showed the older boys how he did it in the Derby and Preakness.

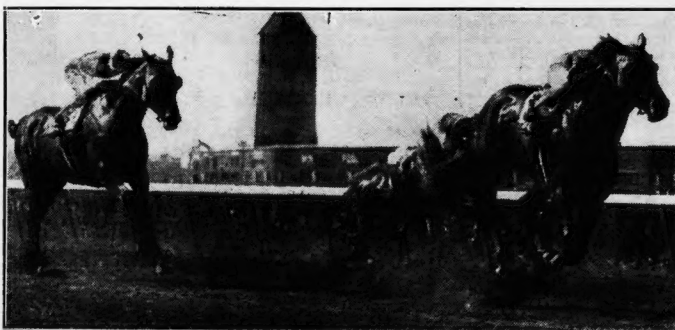

With young Wendell Eads doing a creditable job in the saddle, the balmi son of Blenheim II hit the leaders at the head of the stretch and won in a breeze.

True, Midland obligingly went wide at the head of the stretch and gave him racing room on the rail, and Whirlaway was bearing out all down the straightaway. But in his first start against older horses, Whirlay took care of some Grade-A handicappers.

WON ONLY $1650

The mile and a sixteenth affair was listed as an overnight allowance, with no importance. But Trainers Ben Jones for Whirlaway, Tom Smith for Midland, Bill Mulholland for Your Chance and Jim Gaver for Hash all got the idea it was a good opportunity for a "conditioner" for the campaign ahead.

The only thing wrong with the idea was that all of them got it at the same time. Since the winner's end of the thing amounted to only $1650, they didn't figure it was worth running for.

McSpaden Flies To Goodall Tourney

By BILL GRIMES

With all due respect to the fifth round of the W. G. A. district team matches which will be played tomorrow, Friday's Get-To-Gether at the Pine Brook Valley C. C. of President Jim Donnelly's Bench and Bar golfers and the M. G. A. tourneys at Wolaston, Toy Town Tavern and Grand View, the fourth annual Goodall Round Robin invitation at Fresh Meadow, Flushing, N. Y., will get top billing over the week-end.

Three years ago Elmer L. Ward, who was the 1930 New England amateur champion, sponsored the first Goodall at Cincinnati, but for the past two years the round robin has been staged at Fresh Meadow.

The Goodall round robin field, as usual, is comprised of the 15 top professional golfers. Ben Hogan is the defending champion.

With but three exceptions the 1941 field will be the same as that of a year ago. Byron Nelson, the P. G. A. titlist; Martin Jose and Henry Picard will be the absentees. Harold "Jug" McSpaden, Vic Ghezzi and Corp. Ed "Porky" Oliver are the replacements.

BROKE PAR TWICE

A week ago today, "Jug" McSpaden, who is the pro at the Winchester Country Club, topped the field at the first annual Big 8 Invitation at The Country Club by negotiating the Brookline course in 70-68-138, which was three strokes under Ben Hogan's 36-hole total. And, moreover, McSpaden was the only member of the octet to break par on both rounds.

McSpaden is the first Bay State professional ever invited to play in a Goodall Round Robin. And, the Winchester pro is a threat to take the title, plus the $1000 prize money, from Ben Hogan.

"Jug" will leave by plane late today for New York and will play a practice round at Fresh Meadow tomorrow morning, for he hasn't seen the Flushing layout since 1932, when, while representing Victory Hills, he was 20 strokes behind the winner, Gene Sarazen.

FOURTEEN MATCHES

The Goodall Round Robin is a seven-round event, during which each of the 15 contestants, playing in threesomes, engages in 14 matches. The schedule calls for one round tomorrow afternoon, two on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Recently, a New York scribe made an issue of the fact that Byron Nelson, the ex-U. S. open champion, and Ralph Guldahl, who held that title in 1937 and 1938, refused invitations because their bids didn't include the $1000 appearance money they received for playing when they were the holders of the national crown.

Figuring that the United States open champion was essential to the success of the first Goodall Round Robin, Ward guaranteed Guldahl $1000 to play at Cincinnati in 1938. And, Nelson received "a grand" for playing a year ago. But, Guldahl wasn't invited to play at Fresh Meadow last year. He had relinquished his title to Nelson and was dropped because in the opinion of those who know their way around in golf, he had given his best in either of the two previous Goodallas.

YARD STICK OF ABILITY

But, it is a different story in the case of Nelson. The ex-U. S. champion was invited to play this year but was unable to obtain permission from his club, Inverness, to absent himself from his duties for four days.

"JUG" McSPADEN

In the short space of three years, the Goodall Round Robin has become one of the important golf classics in the country. A year ago, it pushed the notices of the Metropolitan Open, which is a major championship, off the New York sport pages. It is gaining more and more prestige annually and professional golfers are rated according to whether or not they were invited to play in the Goodall.

Carters Try Luck on Caseys

Schedule makers in the Boston Park League have passed the buck to Ray Coolidge's Carter's Clothes outfit. For tonight, at the Lee playgrounds in South Boston the Coolidge team will try to stop the winning spurge of the Dick Casey Club of Dorchester in the feature of the two-game schedule.

In the only other game in the week mid-week program, the Artesian Club and the Navy Yard A. A. will pick up where they left off, at the Brighton Club invading Barry Park, Charlestown, in a return visit.

Manager Coolidge intends to send his ace scotchpaw after the victory, Charlie Wonoski. Wonoski, one of the leading hitters in the circuit last season, has been taking his regular turn on the mound and playing the remainder of the schedule at first base.

The Casey Club has romped through the first six games in league play with all of its starting pitchers finishing their games with plenty to spare. The defending champions have beaten the Artesian Club of Brighton twice, the Rosindale Town Club, the Mayor Tobin Club and the new Hurley Club twice.

BRAVES REACH LAST STOP ON ROAD TRIP

and lost four. They apparently had the final game in Cincinnati sewed up with a 3 to 1 lead going into the eighth but blew the verdict, 9 to 6, in the ninth.

SHONE FOR SEVEN INNINGS

If it had gone the other way, the Braves would have been 3-4 coming into this town, which wouldn't have been too bad.

Stengel will be a long time in getting over yesterday's game. Dick Erickson, who started, went along like the Erickson of old until the eighth. In that frame he walked the first man and Roy Lomer. When Frey also strided, Stengel yanked Erickson in favor of Art Johnson.

It looked like a wise move on the part of the Braves pilot when Johnson sent the side down in order.

STARTED WITH MOORE MUFF

The Braves then picked up a run in the ninth and with a 6-2 lead, everything looked rosy. Nothing can be taken for granted in baseball, though, and a Gene Moore error sparked a rally that wound up with a three-run homer on the part of Frank McCormick giving the Reds a total of six runs for the inning and the game.

With two Reds on and one out, Gene Moore muffed Mike McCormick's fly. Koy singled home two runs and Frey bounced to Dahlgren for what should have been the final out.

Ripple then doubled and in rushed Art Javery to throw up a home run ball to Frank McCormick and settle the affair.

But that game is now gone and there is today's game on tap.

TORIN HOLDS WIN OVER BUCCS

Those Pirates, though, are far from a soft touch. After getting away to a poor start, they have been running wild. Having clouted Brooklyn and taken two out of three from the Giants, the Buccs have come up with five victories in their last six starts.

Myers Lauds B. C. Gridders

NEW YORK, May 21 (INS)—Boston College will lead another flock of high flying Eagles on the football field next fall in the opinion today of Denny Myers, new B. C. gridiron mentor.

Along with the Rev. William J. Murphy, S. J., Myers was guest of honor at a Boston College alumni dinner here last night. It was his first formal visit to New York since he was selected to succeed Frank Leahy as the Eagle coach after Leahy resigned to accept a similar position at Notre Dame.

Myers told friends and the alumni that his team had a great spirit and that he felt it would do credit to the school. Myers pointed out, however, that the Eagles will be weaker in reserve material than they were last year and the season before when they went to the Sugar Bowl and Cotton Bowl.

BRONX OPEN 3-GAME DUEL AT FENWAY

first inning, he pitched hitless ball for five frames.

Frankie Croucher opened the slash with a double. Newhouse sacrificed and the tying run was on third with one out. Earl was really on the spot.

RYBA GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

Here's how he got off. First he fanned Bob Harris. Then he fanned Pat Mullin.

He had slightly easier sailing thereafter, his mates getting him three more runs in the seventh. But he kept bearing down and was ever complete master of the situation until, with one out in the ninth, Rudy York hit a 3 to 2 pitch over the wall for a homer after Mullin had singled.

"Lefty" walked and walked only two. His outfield was only two putouts. It was the best pitched game contributed by a Boston pitcher.

And now that the youngest kid on the staff has qualified as a mound maximatist, the oldest "kid" on the staff attempted to do likewise.

At 11:30 p. m. when the last place St. Louis Browns invaded the Fen for a three-game series. The ancient Mike Ryba was Joe Cronin's choice to start against the Mound City crew.

FOUR EX-SOX WITH BROWNS

The Browns are a better ball club than their present standing would indicate. They pack plenty of punch and whenever they get a well pitched game, they're bad news. Weak pitching and catching are responsible for their presence in the basement, but they have strengthened both departments in the past week by acquiring Vernon Kennedy and Rick Ferrell and now it won't be long before they are up batting for a first division berth.

Ferrell is one of four ex-Sox with the visitors. The others are Pitcher Elden Auker, Freddie Ostermiller and Danny Galehouse. Neither Auker nor "Older" has gained many headlines this Spring but Galehouse is a current A. L. sensation, having turned in one-hit and four-hit victories in his last two starts.
